SEVENTEEN SEEK VOTERS' SUPPORT AT POLLS TODAY

Between 15,000 and 25,000 Expected To Cast Ballots in Seven Races; Fair Day Is Promised.

SPEECHES WIND UP IN 'RADIO RALLY'

Citizens Will Decide If Future Primaries Will Be Held in Spring, Fall.

Voters of Atlanta and Fulton county will go to the polls today and nominate three county commissioners, three municipal judges and elect a sheriff with a vote ranging between 15,000 and 25,000 expected.

Also to be decided is the issue of whether to hold future primaries in the spring or in the fall.

Businessmen and governmental officials were urged to allow employees time off today to cast their ballots.

The majority of the 17 campaigners for the seven positions wound up their stumping last night with short speeches at an

CONSTITUTION WILL BROADCAST VOTING

Up-to-the-minute returns of the sheriff's election and Democratic primary will be given on the "regular" Constitution News Broadcast at 11 o'clock tonight over Station WGST.

Polling places for the Democratic primary will be open from 7 o'clock this morning until 7 o'clock tonight.

Polling places for the sheriff's election will be open from 7 until 6 o'clock in the larger precincts.

At 11 voting places with fewer than 200 registered voters, boxes will be open from 8 until 3 o'clock for the sheriff's election.

"old-fashioned political rally" with modern touches. Voters sat in their easy chairs and heard the last-minute pleas of the aspirants over the radio. The rally was sponsored by the Atlanta League of Women Voters, which opposes the spring primary.

Expect Large Vote.
A comparatively large number of the qualified voters is expected to cast ballots today. The weatherman says the day will be bright and warm.

Election officials yesterday warned voters to beware of losing their votes because of the difference in voting hours in the Democratic primary and the sheriff's election.

They called attention to the fact that the polls in the sheriff's race close in the largest precincts at 6 o'clock tonight, whereas the primary polls stay open until 7 o'clock. Voters who arrive at the polls after 6 o'clock will find they cannot vote for sheriff.

In the 11 smallest county precincts in the sheriff's race, polls close at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Claude C. Mason, chief deputy in the ordinary's office, said. These, with less than 200 registered voters, do not open until 8 o'clock in the morning, while all primary polls and those of the sheriff's race in the larger precincts open at 7 o'clock.

Voters today will elect a sheriff

Confessions Expected

NIKOLAI BUCHARIN.

RED TRAITOR TRIAL WILL START TODAY

Former Editor of Official Press and 20 Others Face Army Tribunal.

MOSCOW, March 1.—(AP)—Confessions greater in scope than any turned up in previous Soviet trials were expected in foreign quarters tonight from Nikolai Bucharin, former editor of official Russian newspapers, and 20 of his alleged fellow traitors who face a military tribunal tomorrow.

On the eve of the trial, the press continued its attacks on the accused, calling them "despicable reptiles" and "hirelings of Fascism." A typical headline read: "Death to the Despicable Traitors of the Fatherland."

Although details of the trial were not divulged, it was presumed the tribunal would sit in the ornate little baroque room of the former Nobles' Club in midtown where similar trials have taken place.

Under Soviet procedure a trial opens with the reading of the indictment, incorporating confessions, and then the defendants are formally identified.

$40,000 Fire Razes School at Kennesaw

KENNESAW, March 1.—Kennesaw Consolidated school, valued at $40,000, was destroyed by fire tonight as fire fighters from Marietta stood by, unable to act because of lack of water facilities.

The flames, believed to have originated in the ceiling of one of the class rooms, swept quickly through the building, which contained 11 rooms and an auditorium. Though the building itself was a number of years old, a large part was of recent construction.

Loyalist Draft Exempts Priests and Ministers

MADRID, March 1.—(AP)—Special exemption from bearing arms for Catholic priests and Protestant ministers as well as members of religious bodies who present conscientious objections to fighting, was announced tonight by War Minister Prieto.

The decree was issued in connection with the draft today of all youths of 19 and men of 30.

Divorcee Says Rector Broke Troth, Seeks $100,000 Damages in Suit

STEBENVILLE, Ohio, March 1.—(AP)—Cora Lillian Burnham, slim, 43-year-old divorcee, testified in federal court today that the Rev. Harold C. Zeis, Episcopalian rector, broke their agreement to marry in 1935 and then "sat by my bed the rest of the night."

Miss Burnham, who is now secretary to the manager of a publishing house in New York is suing Mr. Zeis, rector of St. Paul's church here, for $100,000 for breach of promise.

She told a jury of 12 middle-aged men that she met Mr. Zeis in 1925 while he was attending Kenyon College and "filling in" a pulpit at Bellefontaine, Ohio,

PLANS TO REVISE U. S. GOVERNMENT ASSAILED BY BYRD

Virginian Says Bill Would Give President Authority To 'Disrupt and Dismantle Departments'

SENATOR DEFENDS EX-COMPTROLLER

O'Mahoney, Minton Take Floor To Support Measure Backed by F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, began today a floor fight against the administration bill to reorganize the government by citing provisions permitting the chief executive to reduce, merge, reorganize or transfer government agencies. He told the senate that the President thus could "abolish functions of government which have been fixed by congress."

His voice ringing, Byrd found fault with numerous provisions of the measure. He said it would permit an increase in the number of government employees and might raise the cost of government "many millions of dollars."

"Could Change Name."

"The President could change the name of any department. He could change the cabinet positions around and prescribe new duties and functions. He could disrupt and dismantle a department and leave a mere shell remaining."

"He would be able to make transfers of funds from unexpended balances and use the money for other purposes than those for which it was appropriated. He could continue emergency agencies beyond the expiration dates fixed by congress by merging them into executive departments."

Provisions of Bill.

Byrd spoke at length on provisions of the bill which would abolish the present comptroller general, lodging his duties in the director of the budget and a new auditor general.

At present, he said, the comptroller general audits expenditures before they are made, but only a post-audit would be made if the bill were enacted.

The senator said J. R. McCall, former comptroller general, had been criticized for being "too autocratic."

"But he was the only person in Washington," the speaker continued, "who has exercised a restraining influence against the reckless spending of public money in recent years."

Same Power.

Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana, argued that under the bill the budget director would have the same power to recover funds illegally spent that now rests with the comptroller general.

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, asserted the comptroller general actually passed upon "only three and a half per cent" of funds before they were spent and then only when federal agencies voluntarily requested this action.

150 U. S. WARSHIPS WILL STIR PACIFIC IN FLEET GAMES

Six Weeks' Maneuvers To Engage 58,600 Men, 500 Planes and Submarines in Technical Problems.

AREA WILL INCLUDE ALASKA AND HAWAII

Attack, Defense Tactics Will Test Materials, Vessels and Personnel.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., March 1.—(AP)—A vivid six-week drama of war in the Pacific will start March 14.

It is the annual maneuvers of the United States fleet. "Fleet problem 19" is the title. The players are 3,600 officers and 55,000 men aboard 150 surface ships and 500 fighting airplanes.

The theater extends from the Aleutian Islands and Alaska, down to Hawaii and across to the west coast of the United States. Three problems of naval warfare are involved.

Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander-in-chief of the fleet, lifted the veil of secrecy enough to outline 12 parts of the drama today. He said the exercises are designed to afford the maximum amount of fleet training, training of personnel and tests of material under varying conditions of sea and weather.

The three main acts are unrelated. They are tactical and strategic problems.

Twelve Parts Announced.

The 12 parts were officially announced as follows:

1. Departure of two fleets from San Diego and San Pedro.
2. A fast-striking white fleet, with heavy cruisers and giant sky bombing patrols, commanded by Vice Admiral W. T. Tarrant, defends a coastline with orders to defeat a powerful dreadnought force, the black fleet—battleships, aircraft carriers, destroyers—commanded by Admiral E. C. Kalbfus. There will be surprise encounters, day and night, including use of submarines and all types of naval aircraft.

3. Admiral Bloch resumes command of the whole fleet for tactics.

4. Division of forces for second big war problem.

5. Powerful blue fleet, commanded by Admiral Bloch, attacks Hawaiian area. Red fleet, of submarines, sky patrols and fast craft defends Hawaii, under command of Rear Admiral O. G. Murfin, commandant there. The fleet marine force, commanded by Major General L. M. Little, will land.

Four Parts Incidental.

Parts 6, 7, 8 and 9 will be operations in the Hawaiian area, fleet tactics under direction of Admiral Bloch, and periods at anchor for provisions, fueling, recreation and upkeep.

10. Division of forces for the third big war problem.

11. Powerful overseas armada, the purple fleet, commanded by Admiral Kalbfus, attacks west coast of the United States, threatening the region from the Aleutians to San Diego. The green fleet, commanded by Vice Admiral Tarrant and composed of fast-moving heavy cruisers, newest sky patrols and submarines, and regular coast defense forces, defends.

Operations will be against west coast seaports and supply bases.

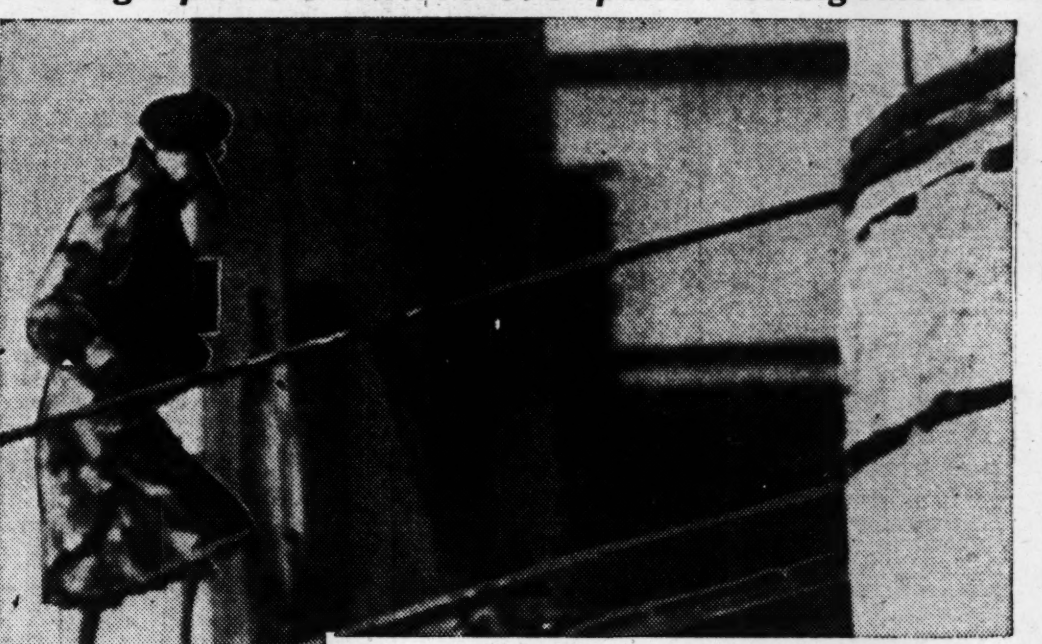

12. Units reorganize into normal forces and cruise back to San Diego and San Pedro bases.

BRITAIN TO OUTLINE AIR DEFENSE PLANS

LONDON, March 1.—(AP)—The second year of Britain's $7,500,000,000 five-year arms expansion program will be launched tomorrow with publication of the annual defense white paper, the official government report.

F. D. R. Profit On Documents To Aid Public

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, Press Secretary Stephen T. Early said today, intends to utilize for a "useful public purpose under government direction" whatever profits are derived from sale of his state papers.

Neither the President nor New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman, compiler and collaborator with the chief executive, will make a penny on contemplated book and newspaper syndicate publication, Early said.

Taking exception to what he called "misrepresentation" and "gross exaggerations" by columnists, commentators and editorial writers, Early told reporters also that the President would not sell his press conference transcripts.

As the situation now stands, Early explained:

Random House would publish the five books, one covering Roosevelt's two terms as Governor of New York, and four embracing the textual story of the New Deal during the President's first term in the White House. These will embrace everything, including texts, press conference reports, and presidential forewords, footnotes and continuity.

A newspaper syndicate will publish material from the forewords and footnotes.

Japanese Will Quit Alaskan Fish Trips

TOKYO, Wednesday, March 2. (UP)—The Japanese government has decided to abandon further fishing exploratory trips in Alaskan waters, it was learned reliably today.

The newspaper Chugai Shogyo Shimpo said that the Japanese foreign office had dispatched a note to that effect to the United States State Department.

D'Annunzio, Soldier-Poet, 74, Dies Too Soon for Planned Exotic Exit

GARDONE, Italy, March 1.—(UP)—Gabriele D'Annunzio, Italy's eccentric soldier-poet, died tonight from a brain hemorrhage in the library of his villa in the Alpine foothills where he had been awaiting death for 16 years and improving bizarre ways of meeting it.

Death came too quickly, however, for the 74-year-old poet to use any of his exotic exists, and he died slumped over his desk.

Only a few feet away was his "Room of the Leper"—sometimes he referred to it as "The Cell of Pure Dreams"—that he had prepared for the day of death.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Business has not done its share in combating the recession, Bernard M. Baruch, friend and advisor of President Roosevelt, frankly told the senate unemployment committee today.

Appearing for the second day as a witness in the committee's inquiry, the silver-haired financier also reiterated his previous contention that tax revision is necessary to recovery.

VIENNA MOBILIZES ANTI-NAZI FORCES

Resurrection of Heimwehr Army To Support Schuschnigg Under Way

GRAZ, Austria, March 1.—(AP)—Prospective resurrection of the Heimwehr army as a political force today piled another obstacle in the path of Nazi ambitions to dominate Austria.

Major Emil Fey, former Vienna chieftain of the Fascist Heimwehr, careened into the limelight.

"I told the chancellor that in 48 hours I could mobilize about 80,000 armed men to defend Austrian independence," Fey said. "Some have weapons now, others can easily get them."

An estimated 20,000 Nazis paraded noisily by torchlight through Graz tonight. Graz authorities offered no resistance to the demonstration.

While armed units maintained strict order throughout the country, radical Nazis in Graz drew up these five "demands" with which to confront Minister of Interior Seyss-Inquart.

1. Permission to enlist members freely.
2. The government must consider the results of the Nazi membership drive as a plebiscite.
3. Federal and provincial governments must be organized on a basis of the membership campaign.
4. The constitution of 1934, guaranteeing free speech, must be carried out.
5. Socialists and Communists should not be entitled to organize.

MARSHAL INSISTS GERMANS ABROAD GET FULL RIGHTS

Threatens To Let Loose 'Uncurbed Recklessness' If Planes Are Sent To Attack Other Countries.

MILITARY BUILDUP TOLD IN BROADCAST

Then Organ of Goebbels Admits Hazy Weather Keeps Bombers Aground

BERLIN, March 1.—(AP)—Germany's only active field marshal, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, today rattled the saber in best Prussian fashion as he warned that the Reich's air force was ready to protect the "ten millions of Germans on our borders."

If Premier Milan Hodza, of Czechoslovakia, which has 3,500,000 Germans, and Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, of Austria, which has about 6,500,000, did not hear him, it was not his fault.

His defiant address commemorating the third anniversary of the air force, which he as air minister created, was broadcast.

Plain Warning.

And if British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Premier Camille Chautemps do not see the complete text with all his strong words, it also will not be Goering's fault. The speech later was officially released verbatim.

Raising his voice to a high pitch and pronouncing every word with studied emphasis, the air minister thundered to an audience composed largely of aviators:

"And so, my comrades, we have all helped lay the foundations to that force which no longer permits Germany to be exposed to impotence and violation of her national rights."

"And if the Fuehrer (Chancellor Adolf Hitler) in his Reichstag speech (of February 20) presented the proud record of achievement and used those proud words that we no longer can tolerate the maltreatment with impunity of ten millions of Germans on our borders, then you members of the air force know that if need be you must go the limit to make good these words of the Fuehrer."

Demands on Europe.

That was in plain language:

1. Warning Hodza to treat the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia as Hitler thinks they should be treated.
2. Warning Schuschnigg to give Austrian Nazis the liberty of action Hitler demands for them.
3. Warning Chautemps not to encourage Czechoslovakia too much

State Postmasters To Confer With Officials of U. S. Group

Ramspeck Civil Service Bill and Plans for Georgia Observance of National Air Mail Week To Be Discussed at Meeting Tomorrow.

Postmasters of central Georgia will confer with ranking officers of the National Association of Postmasters tomorrow in the federal courtroom of the old post office building.

The postal officials will discuss the Ramspeck bill which seeks to authorize civil service for all presidential postmasters and will make plans for the Georgia observance of Air Mail Week, May 15-21.

Postmaster Lon Livingston, of Atlanta, has accepted an appointment as Georgia chairman of the national Air Mail Week celebration.

I. A. Smoot, of Salt Lake City, president of the national association,

George W. Purcell, of Bloomington, Ind., first vice president, and John J. Hart, of Ottawa, Ill., secretary-treasurer, will attend the conference.

These national association officers arrived in Georgia Monday and are holding conferences throughout the state this week. Yesterday they met southwestern Georgia and southeastern Alabama postmasters in Columbus. Saturday they will confer with postmasters of eastern Georgia and of South Carolina, in Augusta.

The Atlanta conference was called by Postmaster Wiley West, of Decatur, president of the Georgia chapter.

MRS. G. A. PUJOL.

CUBAN OFFICIAL'S WIFE VISITS HERE

Mrs. G. A. Pujol Says Her People Leave Big Apple to Americans.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
Mrs. Guillermo Alonso Pujol, of Havana, who thinks a woman's place is in the home and not in politics, visited here for the first time last fall for her husband, now president of the Cuban senate.

The Cuban matron, visiting here with Major and Mrs. N. J. Castellano and Miss Maria Castellano, said at G. M. A. yesterday: "It is true that I have voted once. But naturally I would vote for my husband, who wouldn't? Other than that I take no part in the political life of my country. I am only an onlooker. Many women in my country have turned to politics and now there are several in the Cuban house of representatives."

The official life in Havana is carried on in much the same manner as in Washington, she said.

In the city due to the illness of her two sons, Alonso Jr., and George, now in their third year at G. M. A., Mrs. Pujol discussed various customs of her country.

"We play bridge, we have garden clubs, and we like to go to supper dances. But we leave the big apple for the Americans to dance."

Mrs. Pujol and her family are intimate friends of the Cuban ambassador, Pedro Martinez Fraga, who represents his country in Washington. Her brother, Jose Manuel Bermudez, and Ambassador Fraga attended college together.

Shopping and attending the newest shows on Broadway are on the schedule for Mrs. Pujol's trip to New York beginning today when she leaves here with Miss Castellano.

175 Southern Boys Take West Point Examinations Here

Army Selecting Best as Future Leaders of Its Fighting Men.

The army yesterday began a weeding process for selecting the southern boys it will train to lead its fighting men.

At Fort McPherson, and other army posts throughout the nation, young hopefuls began a three-day final examination for entrance to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., as plebes in the cadet class to be received July 1.

175 Candidates.

Approximately 175 boys from southeastern states are taking the examinations at Fort McPherson. They got their chance because of nominations from United States senators and representatives or under army provisions to fill special presidential, regular army and national guard vacancies.

Some of the boys are only alternates, whose chance on entering West Point depends on the failure of the principal ahead of him.

Before the examinations are completed, the candidates—all of whom are between the ages of 17 and 21—will have undergone thorough educational, character, personality and physical tests.

Soldiers Compete.
The regular army soldiers competing for cadetships have completed a course at the Army's West Point Preparatory school, Fort McPherson, under tutelage of West Point graduates.

Members of the examining board at Fort McPherson are: Lieutenant Colonel Minot E. Scott, dental corps, president; Lieutenant Colonel Harry J. Keeley, infantry; Lieutenant Colonel Louis A. Falligant, infantry; Lieutenant Colonel Herbert H. Price, medical corps; Lieutenant Colonel Rollo P. Bourbon, medical corps; Major Will H. Gordon, infantry; Captain John W. Rich, medical corps; Captain James C. Horne, infantry; First Lieutenant Horace F. Bigelow, field artillery; First Lieutenant Wallace H. Brucker, coast artillery; and Second Lieutenant Paul M. Jones, cavalry.

Japan's Gains Light, U. S. Officer Reports

HANKOW, China, March 1.—(P)—A United States marine captain, Evans F. Carlson, today reported from first-hand observation that costly Japanese military operations in northwest China have netted them only thin strips of territory along the main railway lines.

Unpenetrated by Japan's war march, encircling areas contain 10,000,000 Chinese who continue to live under authority of the central Chinese government.

Carlson made the report after returning from a 3,000-mile, three-month trip through the rugged regions of Hopeh and Shansi provinces with the Chinese Eighth army, formerly Red forces which now have sided with the Nanking-Hankow armies to fight Japan.

He declared the civilian population was determined unanimously to continue resisting Japan and co-operating with their military forces by transporting wounded soldiers and even moving hospitals when Japanese forces approach.

Carlson said great quantities of supplies were captured from the Japanese and he saw evidences of success in cutting Japanese communication lines. Carlson was the guest of Chu Teh, commander-in-chief of the Communist Eighth army.

COMMISSION DEFERS MEETING FOR DAY

The March meeting of the Fulton County Commission, scheduled for today, will be postponed until tomorrow because of the election and primary, Chairman J. A. Raggsdale announced.

The board will meet this afternoon to adjourn immediately until 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, at which time scheduled hearings on sewer projects and zoning petitions will be heard.

Rosser but Judges A. L. Etheridge and Ralph McClelland have no opposition. It is the first time these three judges have faced an election.

Primary officials received final instructions on conducting the election yesterday afternoon from J. Wilson Parker, secretary of the Democratic executive committee, and other officers.

They will begin officially tabulating the votes at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. The officials of the sheriff's

Famous Chimpanzee, Jiggs, Dies on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—(P)—Jiggs, 9-year-old chimpanzee prominent in the movie acting fraternity, died today of pneumonia.

During his seven years in pictures, Jiggs played scores of roles and earned many thousands of dollars for his owner, Mrs. Jacqueline Gentry. Jiggs was paid $100 a day. He was in the Tarzan films and recently completed "Her Jungle Love."

Jiggs ate at the Gentry dinner table and romped in the gentry living room. But he never became wholly civilized—he never slept in a bed. He preferred to rug on the floor of his outdoor cage.

Jiggs will be buried in a Hollywood pet cemetery tomorrow.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, spicy or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or have poor posture your stomach cannot do its job. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel over-sick and upset all over.

Don't say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes hours to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one box package proves it. Ask for Bell's for Indigestion.

SAVANNAH TO VOTE ON LEGAL LIQUOR

Chatham Election Set for March 18; Petitions at Fulton Polls Today.

Fulton voters will be asked to sign a local option liquor petition at the polls today, Stuart Murray, repeal committee chairman, said yesterday as Chatham (Savannah) county became the tenth county to call an election on legalization and taxation of whisky.

Chatham's petition, bearing 4,531 more names than necessary, was certified yesterday by Ordinary Gordon Saussy, who designated March 18 as the date for the referendum. Coffee county's petition for a referendum is virtually complete.

In the meantime, Dougherty county, scheduled to vote March 7, was reported "going wet" again. Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head's order banning whisky sales dried it up for a time but yesterday package sales were being made, it was said.

Murray asserted signatures gained today would definitely assure the names of 17,099 qualified voters being affixed to the petition asking an election in Fulton county. He expects to present it to the ordinary tomorrow or Friday, he said.

A Cheap Political "Fake" Exposed!

TO THE VOTERS OF THE SIXTH WARD:

Don't be fooled by a card mailed to the voters of your ward claiming a "Sixth Ward Civic Club" has endorsed Aldredge for Sheriff.

There is no such civic organization in your ward. The only known organization is the "Morningside Civic League" and it has endorsed no candidates.

The card is signed by "R. Edwin DeWitt, President," a fictitious name. No such person is known or can be found.

There is an "R. EDWIN DEWITT," an employee of a packing company, who lives at 589 Sherwood Road. He is a step-son of JOE WATKINS, a deputy on the Aldredge ticket, who lives at 1094 North Avenue, and with whom "R. Edwin DeWitt" lived until recently. The latter denies that he sent such a card, or authorized a name very similar to his to be signed—BUT A BLIND MAN CAN SEE THE CONNECTION.

Here is "R. Edwin DeWitt's signed statement:

"I did not send out signed card sent out by Sixth Ward Civic Club, signed by R. Edwin DeWitt.

ROLAND EDWIN DEWITT."

The similarity of names, the relationship to an Aldredge Deputy, and the fact that there is no such organization as the "Sixth Ward Civic Club," shows the CLUMSY DECEPTION the Aldredge forces are trying on Sixth Ward voters. It shows how desperate they are.

It will avail them nothing. Vote for BAZEMORE and REBUKE such CHEAP, TRICKY POLITICAL PROPAGANDA.

DEATH ASKED FOR 5
IN BLAST KILLINGS*Defense Rests in Case of Dynamited Children.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., March 1.—(AP)—Assistant District Attorney General Dennis Erwin called for the death penalty tonight for three men accused in the dynamite deaths of three children. He told the jury they might find mitigating circumstances to lighten the punishment of Ulysses Walling and Lee Walker, the two defendants who confessed some part in the crime.

He charged Crave Tollett was the "brains" of an abortive plot to kill the father of the children, while Defense Attorney W. H. Clark declared there was "not one iota of evidence" to link Crave Tollett with the crime.

The defense rested its case today soon after two of its witnesses were arrested on perjury charges.

RICHMOND, Va., March 1.—(AP)—The senate finance committee acted favorably today on bills calling for a complete revision of the retirement law for judges and increasing the pay of members of the supreme court, circuit and corporation judges and members of the State Corporation Commission.

Today's senate session brought sudden death to the Moffett-Witten bill for tightening milk control laws after it was subjected to a spirited attack. The bill was voted down, 16 to 21.

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—(AP)—The labor section of the Mexican supreme court today upheld an arbitration board award of increased wages and benefits to oil workers and thereby presented the $400,000,000 foreign industry with the question of abiding by the decision or making good on threats to abandon its operations in Mexico.

Four justices of the section unanimously rejected the appeal by 17 American, British and Netherlands companies from the award which they contended would increase their yearly costs by $12,000,000. The board estimated the increased costs at $7,200,000 annually.

The benefits would go to 18,000 workers in the industry. Action the oil companies will take to meet the decision was expected to be determined in New York.

"Aw, Go Lay an Egg," They Say; She Does

This is scene No. 1 in the daily act of Susie, 10-month-old hen owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stallings, of Jonesboro and Constitution roads, in Lakewood Heights. Susie pecks and pecks at the door until someone of the family answers. Once in, she goes straight to the bedroom.

This is scene No. 2. Susie had a purpose in gaining entry. See, she has laid an egg—and in the bed, too! What's the purpose of using a nest when the bed in the master bedroom is much nicer? She inspects her product, pretty good, she thinks. She has produced one a day for the past six months.

This is scene No. 3. Well, that is all for today, thinks Susie as she struts off the bed and back into the yard with her brothers and sisters. She leaves her egg, amid a few flying feathers, for her owners to collect. They won't have any trouble in this egg hunt, for Susie lays an egg every morning between 10 and 11 o'clock in her bed-nest. was seconded by Robert W. Irwin, Grand Rapids, Mich., furniture manufacturer, who urged modification of the undistributed profits and capital gain levies.

Baruch, agreeing that there were bad, monopolistic practices, nevertheless warned the legislators against "throwing away the benefits of our economy" by a broad attack on business "for the sole purpose of breaking it up into smaller pieces."

He said, however, that there was definitely one thing that should be charged to government—the lack of a "clear statement" of policy toward monopolies.

Baruch urged also "ungrudging" changes in the tax laws which he said had had a "depressing effect on business."

"Turn loose the energies of our 130,000,000 people by changing these tax laws," he urged.

REPUBLICANS FAIL TO KILL TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—Seven Republican legislators, defeated in an attempt to kill the tax revision bill in the house ways and means committee, condemned the measure tonight on ground it would continue "repressive taxation" of business.

The minority members of the committee issued a vitriolic 4,000-word report dealing with three "outstanding, undesirable features." They said these were:

1. The retention of the "vicious and indefensible principle of the undistributed profits tax," which they said should be repealed outright.

2. The imposition of "an unwarranted and discriminatory penalty tax" on closely held or family owned corporations.

3. Failure to limit the taxation of capital gains in such a way as to encourage capital transactions and the investment of new funds in productive enterprise.

HEARST IS REPORTED
DISPOSING OF ART*Third of Great Collection
Said To Be Catalogued for Sale to Museums.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—The New York Times says the monumental art collection of William Randolph Hearst, almost fabulous in size and variety, will be broken up.

Joseph V. Connolly, president of King Features, a Hearst enterprise, confirmed reports that objects from the collection were being offered for sale privately, the Times says.

About a third of the collection, valued at several million dollars, will be offered to museums and collectors, said Connolly.

All paintings, sculpture, tapestries, armor, silver and other rare objects placed on the market will be sold through Parish-Watson & Company, which has been at work on a catalogue since December. It is not planned at present to sell at auction.

The decision to break the collection appears to have been made recently, says the Times, for Hearst was said to be collecting actively as late as last year.

The sale would be the most important here since J. P. Morgan offered some of his paintings in 1935.

As a collector, Hearst's activities are nearly legendary. His treasures decorate two residences in California, a New York apartment and a castle in Wales. Yet, the overflow fills a warehouse here and two on the Pacific coast. A photograph file of the collection is kept at San Simeon, his California estate.

The New York warehouse is reputed to be guarded as strictly as a prison.

PERSHING IS BETTER;

TUCSON, Ariz., March 1.—(UP)—General John J. Pershing, fighting against a complication of heart and kidney ailments, had made enough progress tonight to be able to take solid food.

Maintaining the gains, he has made in the past 24 hours, the general's chances for recovery seemed to be brighter although his heart still was in a precarious condition and he was weak and white.

At 10:30 p. m., (9:30 Atlanta time) Dr. Roland Davison issued this bulletin:

"There has been no change in General Pershing's condition since our noon report. The absence of any relapse is in itself a very favorable sign. His temperature is normal and he has taken food and fluids well throughout the day."

Pershing has made a remarkable return from the edge of death in the last 48 hours, but doctors still kept in mind the possibility that things can happen and happen suddenly to a man of 77 years who has been a hard campaigner in jungles, deserts and Flanders' mud.

"The general has slept most of the morning but remains fully conscious," Dr. Davison said in a mid-day bulletin. "The kidney function in the last 24 hours has been sufficiently adequate to remove some of the poisonous substances which have accumulated in the blood during the period when elimination by the kidneys had stopped."

BERRY'S MARBLE
RULED 'WORTHLESS'*Commission Says Properties of Senator in TVA Dam
Area of No Value.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 1.—(AP)—A three-member federal commission reported tonight the marble properties of Senator George L. Berry and his associates in the TVA's Norris dam area are "commercially worthless" and have no value.

The case came to an undramatic close tonight when the commissioners affixed their signatures to the report in the case that had its reverberations on the floors of the senate.

In 18 words, the commission appointed by Federal Judge Taylor dashed the hopes of the Berry interests, who had claimed a value of "more than $5,000,000." Those words were:

"We are unable to conclude from the record and the physical facts that the properties are of value."

The report will be filed in the United States district court here as a part of the Tennessee Valley Authority's suit to condemn the Berry lease-holdings as worthless.

PLYMOUTH, England, March 1.—(AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, arrived in a jovially non-committal mood today to take up his new post.

He told newspapermen he had no plans for collecting British war debts, bettering Anglo-American relations or wearing knee-breeches at court functions.

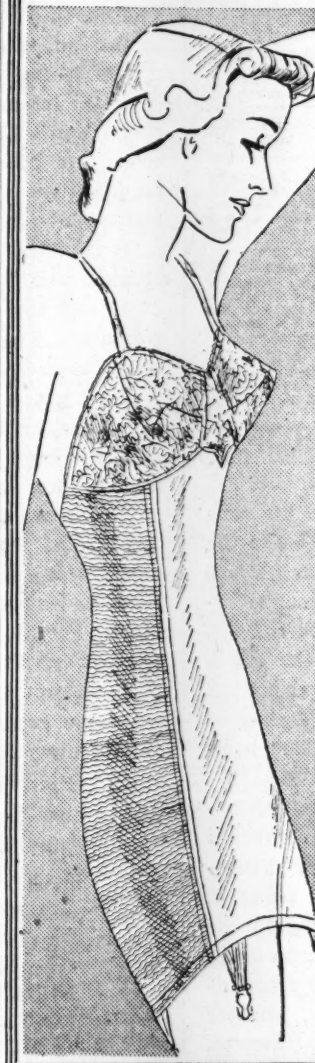

"I think the best thing for me to do is to find out what it's all about," said the ambassador. Kennedy was taken off the liner Manhattan in a British admiralty launch and given a special reception by the lord mayor of Plymouth, Solomon Stephens.

The Mohammedan year begins on July 16.

Relieve Their Misery
This Proved Way

WHEN your child comes down with a cold, you can't afford to take needless risks. Use the treatment that has been doubly proved for you—Vicks VapoRub.

It has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

Vicks VapoRub is direct external treatment. There's no dosing—no risk of spoiling appetite, or disturbing a delicate digestion. VapoRub can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

You simply massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back

(as illustrated). Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

No Long Waiting for Relief to begin...

Almost before you finish rubbing, the youngster begins to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after the little one relaxes into restful sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 2, 1938.

A BUSINESSMAN REPLIES.

Bernard Baruch, testifying before the senate committee on unemployment, comes to the defense of business as a whole when he lays the chief blame for the present economic recession directly at the door of government. His charge that unemployment is the result of the attitude of the administration toward business, in the past, expresses the feeling of the vast majority of "big" and "little" businessmen the nation over.

Unwise tax policies and fear of future legislation which may practically confiscate reasonable profits are the root causes of business failure to continue its upward swing of the earlier months of 1937, according to the well-known financier. Capital, both in large and small quantities, has withdrawn from investment and the man with money, whether he be financial magnate or average investor, is too afraid of possible renewed assaults on "business" to place his funds in normal industrial activities.

Mr. Baruch agrees, he stated, with President Roosevelt that the national income could reach $100,000,000,000 a year, instead of the $67,500,000,000 which is the approximate total today.

Modification of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes is urged by Mr. Baruch as an important step necessary before business can be reawakened and begin putting people back to work. Further than this, he advocates a thorough revision of the federal income tax structure with the object of discovering its greatest efficiency as a revenue producer under the law of diminishing returns.

It is believed that congress will drastically modify the two first named taxes. The house committee on finance has so recommended in its tax-bill report and the demand for this action is so universal it is unlikely congress will fail to heed.

If this is done, there is definite hope the nation will once again witness an upward trend of the economic index and that the total of jobless workers will begin a steady decrease.

Mr. Baruch explains the outlook for the business future in his succinct reply to the question, "has the country reached the bottom of the recession?"

"That depends," he answered, "on the tax legislation. If it relieves the burdens on business and thus puts people back to work, we will have reached the end of this depression. If it doesn't, I feel very dubious about the future."

Business of every legitimate description must be given quick relief from shackling taxation and must be convinced, at once, that it need not fear any recurrence of the antagonistic attitude by government which has been evidenced in recent years.

For it is on business that every individual depends, in the last analysis, for his economic well-being. Business provides the index of the nation's prosperity. When business succeeds and expands, there is plenty for all. When business struggles and retards its activity, unemployment and new poverty stalk the land.

A free business, unhandicapped in its initiative, is the one essential to a prosperous America.

Congress cannot remove the things which have hampered business too quickly for the general good of the entire nation.

CROSSINGS OF DEATH

Announcement by the State Highway Department planning division that it has begun a survey looking toward elimination of all grade crossings in Georgia focuses attention on one of the main causes contributing to the annual toll of deaths on the highways of this state.

Pointing out that more than 50 lives were lost and more than 100 persons were injured in automobile-train crashes last year, O. T. Ray, planning division director, indicates the survey will be state-wide. As outlined, the survey will list accidents at each crossing during the last five years. The crossings will then be grouped according to location and comparative danger.

The director, upon completion of the survey, will make recommendations for elimination of the danger spots or improvement of protection to motorists.

The purpose of this survey cannot be too highly lauded. But unless the recommendations are followed by action, the entire process loses meaning. The annual toll of deaths at grade crossings cannot be stopped merely by calling attention to the cause. The remedy must actually be applied.

END THE EARLY PRIMARY EVIL

Today, Atlanta and Fulton county voters will nominate three county commissioners and three municipal court judges and will elect a successor to the late Sheriff James I. Lowry. The six candidates to be nominated will not take office until January 1.

The voters will also decide a referendum, to declare their opinion on the early primary question. They will mark ballots showing whether they approve of such a primary as this, almost 10 months before the new terms begin, or whether they would prefer to make their choice in the fall, with a shorter "lame duck" period for the incumbents.

In the interest of good government the early primary evil should be ended. The movement to do this is supported by many leading civic organizations and advocates of better government conditions.

It is, almost entirely, an issue between the citizens who seek the best possible government and the professional office holders and politicians, who seek only to perpetuate themselves in their jobs.

Good government demands that the people vote after the issues have fully developed, with full knowledge of the problems to be settled. Seekers after better government thus advocate a primary as close to the date of assumption of office as possible.

Politicians prefer that issues be indefinite, that the voters feel little interest in the primary. For then the political voting blocs, the families, employees and all the adherents to a personal group, will vote for their man solidly, when the general, unorganized voters are apt to stay away from the polls.

In the interest of closer contact between the people and their government and for greater responsibility by officials to the will of the voters, be sure to visit the polls today and cast a ballot against the indefensible early primary system.

DEMOCRATIC ARGENTINA

Happy augury comes in the news from the Argentine, where a new president, Roberto M. Ortiz, in his inaugural speech, declared his faith in democratic institutions. That this was not an empty phrase was immediately demonstrated when sweeping orders announced an end to the secrecy and censorship which marked the regime of ex-President Augustin P. Justo.

With many observers professing concern at the apparent spread of Fascism through the republics to the south, this phrase, with its attendant action emphasizing its definiteness, is doubly reassuring.

Despite a heavy German population, more strongly retaining its ties with the fatherland than any other nationality, not to mention a large number of Italian immigrants, Argentina has long shown a capacity to maintain a sense of balance in the face of upsetting conditions.

Probably this is due in large part to the great influence of English and American residents of the country, and to an alert and enlightened press. One of the greatest papers published in the Spanish language, La Prensa, is printed in Buenos Aires, a city of rare beauty and culture. During the World War vast quantities of foodstuffs were shipped from Argentina to the British Isles, although the country remained strictly neutral.

That the change in governmental procedure comes at this time is reassuring in view of disconcerting upheavals marking the internal conduct of some other South American countries. It presages, it is hoped, a further realization that in democracy and in democratic institutions rests the happy future of this hemisphere.

Immediately after President Ortiz's speech, the ministers of interior and finance announced they intend conducting the affairs of government openly. In the previous regime it had been virtually impossible for the press to see the ministers of these departments except when they had something they wanted publicized for their own interests. For the rest, what news was available came in the form of mimeographed sheets, comment on which was regarded with deep resentment.

The citizens of the Argentine are to be congratulated on a new enlightenment in their government.

"Japan scatters her blessings on China and gets no thanks," a puzzled Tokyo editor tells a coast gathering. Perhaps China doesn't like her manna.

Already the sap stirs in northern maples, and a ten-ton steam roller disappears from a New York highway job. It must be the gypsy in it.

Editorial of the Day

AN INDUSTRY WORTH SAVING

(From the Detroit Free Press.)

American and Canadian commercial fishermen take some 120,000,000 pounds of fish out of the Great Lakes annually, valued at approximately $8,000,000.

And yet, as the result of lack of proper regulation, this important industry, conservation experts warn, faces extinction.

The outlook for it is so serious that representatives of the United States and Canadian governments, as well as the governments of Ontario and of the eight states bordering on the Great Lakes, will meet in Detroit this week to agree upon a uniform program to save the industry through protection of small fish.

The selection of a Michigan city for this meeting is a tribute to Michigan's leadership in shortening its fishing season and insisting on large-mesh nets, a leadership which some of the other states have not seen fit to follow.

The decline of the whitefish catch from 3,500,000 to less than 500,000 pounds annually is only one measure of the fate in store for the Great Lakes fisheries if something effective is not promptly done to curb the ravages of cut-throat competition among the fishermen, who seem to act on the assumption that a fish in the net is worth two in the water.

The end of that sort of thing is bound to be the extinction of the stock of commercial fish in the lakes—and, with it, the destruction of the profitable business of supplying tables with piscatorial delicacies fresh from local waters.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

F. D. R. BACKS JACKSON WASHINGTON, March 1.—In spite of the howl of conservative rage provoked by Robert H. Jackson's candidacy for the governorship of New York, President Roosevelt is taking an increasingly personal interest in the political future of his able young legal aide. At first it looked as though the President might be countenancing the Jackson candidacy on an "if you win, I'm for you" basis. But the facts behind the recent young Democrats' dinner for Mr. Jackson indicate rather clearly that the President is ready to fight on Mr. Jackson's side himself. The truth is that the whole resources of the White House were mobilized to make the dinner a success.

Political dinners are probably the dearest form of entertainment ever evolved by the tortured ingenuity of the human race. Nevertheless, they can be distinctly important, simply because the names on the guest list show who is for the guest of honor and who is against him. This is especially true when political rivals are entertaining competitively, as they were on the night of the festival for Mr. Jackson.

While Mr. Jackson was being wine and dined in New York, Attorney General John J. Bennett was eating and orating under the auspices of the Brooklyn American Legion, and Governor Herbert H. Lehman was being feasted in Albany by the state civil service employees. The three men are the outstanding possibilities for New York Democracy's gubernatorial choice next fall, so the fact that the President did everything in his power to recruit Mr. Jackson's guest list has more interest than an ordinary social note.

HINTS TO POLITICAL HOSTS

A whole hand-book on the nature of political hospitality could be compiled as a commentary on the New York dinner for Mr. Jackson. It was originally planned by the chief Jackson backers—the powerful left-wing advisers of the White House—as a small gathering of men of money. One of the chief objections to the Jackson candidacy raised by orthodox Democratic leaders like Postmaster General James A. Farley was that it would frighten the fat cats. The idea was to show Mr. Farley and his colleagues that Jackson could attract the cash to the party campaign chest as well as the next man.

Even in this early stage, the White House was directly involved in the entertainment for Mr. Jackson. James Roosevelt, son and most confidential underdog man of the President, was a party to the scheme; was chosen to supervise the arrangements, and was only prevented from doing so by his trip to Florida.

The plan for a small gathering of potential fat cats was hastily abandoned shortly after young Roosevelt's departure southward, when the White House left-wingers heard of the competing dinner parties to be given the same evening. So excited were they that one of them, who was skiing in Canada, spent some $90 rallying the troops by telephone. The leaders of the left-wing group converged hurriedly on New York, opened an office in the Commodore hotel, where the dinner was given, and set to work making sure that the Jackson dinner would be the biggest and the best.

WHITE HOUSE TO RESCUE

The left-wingers might not have succeeded, although they would always have been able to bring to New York a carload of adherents like Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury, who attended the festivity at their request. But the President was ready to help.

Chunky, shrewd Joseph B. Keenan, whose official title of assistant to the attorney general covers his real job as a personal emissary of the President, was told off to put the Jackson dinner over. Mr. Keenan is far from being a member of the left-wing group backing Mr. Jackson; indeed, he has opposed the left-wingers on many occasions.

Yet he went to work with a will, telephoning such senators as Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana; arranging that Lamar Hardy, United States attorney for the New York district, should attend with his whole staff; bringing in the kind of practical New York politicians whom the left-wingers are poorly equipped to handle. Meanwhile Joseph P. Kennedy, the New Deal's tame capitalist, was induced to send a congratulatory telegram, and the fat cats were tempted to the party.

GOOD TIME HAD BY ALL

In the end, everything turned out splendidly. The guest list was so long that the Commodore ballroom could hardly hold the celebrators. Every group, from the Wall Streeters, represented by Gerard Swope and Charles R. Gay, to Tammany Hall, which sent two district leaders, had its delegates in the crowd.

Governor Lehman's confidential adviser, Charles Poletti, ate with Attorney General Bennett, but missed his coffee to rush to Manhattan to hear Mr. Jackson speak. Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, a growing influence in New Politics, did his bit for Mr. Jackson. And Mr. Jackson himself, whose earlier oratorical efforts tended to be strained and minatory, managed to convey the same sensible, intelligent and agreeable impression which he gives in private.

The presidential assistance which put the Jackson dinner over may eventually put the Jackson candidacy over. It seems to give Mr. Jackson a distinct edge over Attorney General Bennett. The doubtful factor is Governor Lehman, now heartily detested by the White House, whose own distrust of the President is said to have decided him to run again. Governor Lehman would be pretty tough for Mr. Jackson to beat, but a Lehman effort to run again might make the President still stronger for Mr. Jackson, on the principle of "I could not love thee near so much, loathed I not Lehman more."

And The Stage.

Gertrude Lawrence, famed actress and star of the current Broadway stage success, "Susan and God," spoke recently before the Woman's University Club, meeting in New York City.

Miss Lawrence chose as her topic the revival of public interest in plays of intensely religious theme. She sees in this trend an evidence of a reawakening, all over the world, of man's interest in things of the spirit, a searching after the deeper things of the soul after the heart has sickened over the failure of faith in things material.

Religious plays, says Miss Lawrence, are no accident of production. They are being welcomed by audiences because playwrights and producers have sensed the public desire, they are thinking alike under a world condition that approaches near to chaos.

Man, Distracted, Turns to God.

"Our world today has been parched by flames of hate and selfishness," she declared. "The people of the world stand like a great dry forest, ready to burst into a blazing inferno. Masters of the mob have been leading the people into hate and selfishness and suspicion. Already armies are marching, great splashing warm human blood upon the earth. The decencies of so-called civilized warfare have been scrapped to crush the foe. Airplanes, products of man's inventive genius, have been used to carry man back to the brutal rules of war that made men use scalping knives upon fallen foes in darker ages."

"And what are sensible men of this world doing about this sudden hell that is welling out onto the surface of the earth?" "They are turning to God as their Savior, as men have always turned to God. Men want peace and decency and security in their homes, and at last men know that only God can give those blessings when feeble men have failed in their job."

Things Closest To One's Heart.

"And when these things are closest to one's heart, one begins to think about them, and then to write about them, and then one

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEULER.

Union Labor LOS ANGELES, March 1.—Some pompous people regard as leadership of such enormously rich actors as Robert Montgomery, James Cagney and Joan Crawford in the organized labor movement in the moving picture business.

But whatever their personal motives, they have formed a union called the Screen Actors' Guild, with a charter from the American Federation of Labor, and have imposed on the industry an agreement which produces the effect of a closed shop in the lower orders of the profession. The casuals and others who were considered to be non-professionals from the rolls of available extras and by the players they reduced the number of eligibles from about 14,000 a year to about 10,000 at present and obtained wage increases for the survivors.

The rolls are now closed, but may be reopened from time to time if there appears to be a shortage of dress-suit people or men with whiskers or talent of some other type. Extras and bit players must belong to the union, but the employers are allowed to use non-union actors in the higher classifications at the ratio of one in ten.

The agreement raised the minimum pay of the extra from $3.20 a day to $5.50 and established a minimum of $25 a day for persons who have lines to speak. The extras and bit players collected an aggregate increase of $3,000,000 last year, and the fortunate rich are proud of the fact that these benefits were wrung from the producers and handed down to the poor members of the profession by their willingness to violate their signed contracts and strike.

Help For

The strike vote, taken a year ago, was 98 per cent for a walkout, and the stars who voted "aye" adjusted their problem of the integrity of the signed agreement in interesting but inconclusive fashion. They decided that the obligation to help the helpless was greater than their individual obligation to their employers, and ceased to consider themselves individually. They decided that collectively they had a moral duty to break their word. Mr. Montgomery admits that no matter how fine it may be whitened, the point of the integrity of a contract still exists, and the stars will be naturally ask how they can be expected to trust the signed agreement of a union whose president and other leaders have shown that they reserve the right to abrogate for any cause which they consider sufficient.

However, the agreement, promising nothing, and the stars who will be no strike for ten years, appears to be working well, and the only serious threat against "the peace comes not out from the employers but from an ambitious rival union, also chartered by the American Federation of Labor, the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, run by a Chicago man named George E. Brown, as president, and locally administered by one William Byoff, as the personal representative of the president.

Rival

This union includes the stagehands, grips, lamp men, electricians, property men, makeup men and, most important of all, the projectors or projectionists. These are the men who run the machines in the theaters around the country, and obviously if they should be called out in a move to coerce the actors into the IATSE the livelihood of the business would be stopped at the source.

There has been no formal move as yet to absorb the actors and bring within reach of Mr. Brown's union the astronomical salaries of the stars for income taxes and capital levies. Nevertheless, the actors are wary and are investigating the careers of the Messrs. Brown and Byoff. If the move occurs they will fight for their union's autonomy and for immunity from arbitrary assessments and horizontal percentage levies on their salaries.

On the other hand, they present a tempting possibility well worth fighting for, and they have heard that the executive council of the alliance passed a resolution at a recent meeting in San Antonio authorizing themselves to take over the guild at some future time. The actors' leaders are amateurs and altruistic dilettantes in labor organization. They have not yet stood any test comparable to that which would come if the Messrs. Brown and Byoff attempted to put the San Antonio resolution into effect.

Cooking Sausage.

Pork sausage requires slow cooking. If much fat collects, drain it off—to prevent greasiness. Pierce link sausage several times with a fork to prevent them from bursting while cooking. To form a brown, crusty covering on sausages, sprinkle them with flour just before they are cooked.

Fall of the Alamo.

The Alamo fell in March, 1836. For 11 days and 11 nights a total of 185 Texans held off 3,000 Mexicans in a stand more heroic than that at Thermopylae.

The Race Isn't Fair if One Runner's Dad Carries Him Part of the Way

By ROBERT QUILEN.

We call this a land of equal opportunity, and so it is if equal opportunity means that each may climb as high and accumulate as much as he can; but if the opportunity is equal, the equipment for it is not.

Only the children of the poor start at scratch. If a dozen boys of equal intelligence finish school at the same time and begin their careers without a dime, half of them will finish as they began. They may farm or practice professions or engage in business, and they may earn $3 a day or $50 a day, but they and their families will consume all they make and they will die without a dollar to bury them.

The other six may follow the same callings and earn the same quantity of money, but the world will consider them more successful, for they will be savers.

They won't get much out of life as the first six did, for they will not work for themselves but for their heirs. When one of them accumulates a dollar, he will fool himself by saying: "I have saved another dollar for myself." But he could more truthfully say: "I have saved a dollar to buy gasoline for one of my heirs."

Whatever their purpose, the savers will keep on denying themselves and accumulating property until they are gathered to their fathers, and then their sons and daughters will get it.

That process has been continued since the first pioneer cleared a farm and left it to his son, and thus the nation has grown ever richer and each new generation has found life easier.

Since women outlive men, and chivalrous Americans leave insurance and property to their wives instead of their sons, women now own over half of the property in America and eventually will own all of it.

But whoever owns it, and despite punitive inheritance taxes which serve only to give legislators more money to waste, the fact remains that wealth is accumulated and left to the next generation, and thus part of us begin life with another's life savings in our pockets, while the rest of us must start at scratch.

And since that is true, the chief concern of social legislation should be to benefit the ones who start with nothing—not to give them charity, but to insure them a fair field and the last fraction of reward they are able to deserve.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

France Turns Up New Road.

NEW YORK—Now that Great Britain, with the elimination of Captain Anthony Eden, who hitherto directed the empire's foreign policy, has definitely taken the side of the dictators, it is obvious that France comes to stand before a grave dilemma. There are two ways open to her: either she can reaffirm and re-enforce the Franco-Soviet pact of mutual assistance and make it a full-fledged military alliance, or she can follow England's lead and make up with Mussolini and Hitler and thus abandon the Soviet Union and leave her ally, Czechoslovakia, in the lurch.

Of course, the Left forces will advocate the former course and there may be some demonstrations in Paris one of these days when it becomes clear that the Chautemps government, or its successor, has joined Britain in the move to come to an understanding with the two dictator states. The Left wing elements and especially the Communists, are not likely to relish the creation of a new situation in Europe which leaves the Soviet Union completely isolated. For that is what it amounts to if Britain, France, Italy and Germany conclude the four-power pact which Hitler has been advocating right along.

Yet, that France will follow suit, is most likely. Information has reached Paris that one of the reasons Chamberlain turned to Hitler and Mussolini was that he had little confidence in the French regime, that is, that he did not think it strong enough to handle a critical emergency like a war. Chamberlain knew that his statement about France's weakness would have a strong repercussion in France. It was an outright appeal to the Right to throw out the Popular Front government and set up a cabinet of national union with probably dictatorial powers vested in the war minister, and a concentration of all national energies on defense and war preparations.

Popular Front Experiment Off.

It may take a week or so of haggling and dickering, but that will be the upshot in France in a short time. The Popular Front experiment is a thing of the past. To have carried it to its logical conclusion would have meant the installation of socialism pure and simple. This the Communists urged, but the Socialist party refused because that would have meant civil war and revolution and at the end of it most likely a Fascist dictatorship.

But then, what is next? For the time being, there will be considerable lessening of the tension in Europe when that four-power pact comes into existence. Naturally, both Hitler and Mussolini will ask for and obtain heavy concessions; the Duce may get in addition to recognition of Ethiopia and a loan for its exploitation, a share of control in the Suez canal. Hitler will see some of Germany's African colonies restored to her. In the meantime with this arrangement in Europe, all the powers will accelerate their armament campaign.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Perhaps this truth was in Browning's heart when he wrote, "And still, as the day wears on, the trouble grew, wherefrom I guessed there would be born a star." John Henry Newman tells us that it was in one of the greatest trials of his life that God gave him these lines:

"Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom,
Lead Thou me on.
The night is dark, and I am far from home,
Lead Thou me on.
Keep Thou my feet; I do not ask to see
The distant scene; one step enough for me."

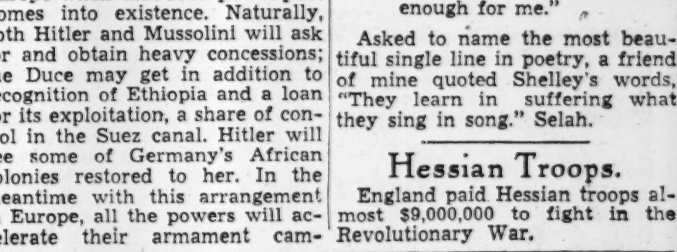

Asked to name the most beautiful single line in poetry, a friend of mine quoted Shelley's words, "They learn in suffering what they sing in song." Selah.

England paid Hessian troops almost $9,000,000 to fight in the Revolutionary War.

'SNOW WHITE' FILM TO SHOW AT FOX

Disney's Full-Length Color
Cartoon To Open Week of March 11.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will open in Atlanta March 11 at the Fox theater for an unlimited engagement.

This picture, Walt Disney's first full-length technicolor film, has made motion picture history and is proving one of the most popular box office pictures ever shown.

Announcement of the booking of the cartoon film was made last night by William K. Jenkins, vice president and general manager of the Lucas & Jenkins theaters.

"The deal embodies the expenditure of more money than has ever been paid for motion pictures here before, and makes it impossible for any other theater in the state of Georgia to show 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs' until after the completion of its run in the Fox," Jenkins explained.

A state-wide publicity campaign has been planned with the aid of Atlanta merchants to attract Georgians to the city during the run of the cartoon picture, Jenkins said.

The film, which took two years to complete, is produced with the aid of technicians who have given depth to the screen cartoons. It is an 80-minute all-color feature. Regular admission prices will be charged for adults though admission for children will be increased to 25 cents, Jenkins said.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" recently was classed by British censors as unfit for chil-

Walt Disney's 'Snow White' Opens Here Next Week

Here is a scene from the much-publicized "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney's first full-length technicolor film, which will open an unlimited engagement at the Fox theater March 11. The picture was two years in production and cost several million dollars. It has played to packed houses in every city in which it has been shown and ran for five weeks in Radio City.

children under 16 years of age, but American child psychologists were quick to defend the picture.

"Little Yankies would seem to be made for sterner stuff than their British cousins," Mrs. Clara Sava Littlefield, editor of Parents' Magazine, commented on the British censorship. "I am sorry for any child so fear-ridden, so easily upset that he has to be kept away from the picture for he will miss one of the rarest pictures ever produced."

'CRIME TOURIST' SEEKS HEARING ON SANITY

PINE BLUFF, Ark., March 1.—

(AP)—Attorneys for Lester Brockelhurst, 24, condemned "crime tourist," filed a petition in Jefferson circuit court here this afternoon asking that Prison Superintendent Reed be forced to conduct a sanity hearing for the former Galesburg (Ill.) Sunday school teacher.

Reed earlier today refused a direct petition from the attorneys for the sanity hearing. Brockelhurst is scheduled to die in the electric chair at dawn Friday at Tucker prison farm for the May 6, 1937, hitch-hike slaying of Victor A. Gates, Little Rock landowner.

CHIMNEY COLLAPSES, KILLS 7-YEAR-OLD BOY

WOBURN, Mass., March 1.—

(UP)—A 50-foot brick chimney of a wash house collapsed late today and killed Hamilton McClay, 7, who with two other boys had been throwing stones at its base. As the chimney fell with a roar, the boys fled in terror. It fell in McClay's direction and flying bricks struck his head.

REPUBLICANS SEEK AID OF DEMOCRATS

Group Named To Prepare
Statement of Policy on Current Affairs.

CHICAGO, March 1.—(AP)—The Republican program committee today moved to obtain the support of dissatisfied Democrats.

Members of the group assigned to prepare a statement of policy on current affairs adopted a resolution instructing the committee to keep in mind:

"The desirability of a field of common thought on which elements in agreement with the political and economic principles that we consider vital to the defense and development of America's free institutions may unite."

Chairman Glenn Frank told reporters the new move stemmed from a discussion on the feasibility of attempting a coalition with dissatisfied or disaffected Democrats.

J. Sam White of North Carolina was named chairman of a regional district for Virginia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

FANTASTIC ORDERS GIVEN BY KIDNAPER

Second Levine Note Written With Cheap Toy Typewriter.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 1.—(AP)—A second kidnap note—written on a cheap "dial" typewriter commonly sold as toys for children—was disclosed today as the parents of 12-year-old Peter Levine, missing since last Thursday, frantically waited to contact the boy's abductors.

The note directed Peter's father, Murray Levine, New York lawyer, to carry out a fantastic method of signifying his willingness to negotiate the boy's return. It instructed the father or an emissary to go to a Third Avenue elevated track in New York city and mark a pillar at a designated spot with green chalk.

Presumably, a member of the "snatch" gang or the kidnaper himself would be on the watch and would recognize the father or emissary, thus being assured that the pay-off negotiations could proceed in good faith.

A source close to the family, in revealing the contents of the second note, said numerals on the ransom communication were written without punctuation in such a way as to stir doubts whether the kidnapers meant to demand $60,000, as previously reported, or the small sum of $600.

Tom Sawyer, Becky Thatcher Coming Here

Tom Kelly, the new juvenile star selected by a talent scout to play Tom Sawyer in the movie version of Mark Twain's immortal story of boyhood adventure, is shown above reading the original Mark Twain "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," before production began. He will arrive in Atlanta tomorrow morning with Ann Gillis, who plays Becky Thatcher, in the film.

The little girl with the hurt expression is Ann Gillis, who plays Becky Thatcher in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" and who will visit Atlanta tomorrow with Tom Kelly, "Tom Sawyer" in the film. A gala reception has been planned for the stars. They will make personal appearances at Loew's Grand theater at 4 and 7 o'clock. This scene is from the school room when Tom took a whipping for her.

SEVEN ADMIT GUILT IN STOCK FRAUDS

Include Philip H. Philbin Jr.,
Socially Prominent.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—

Seven men, including the socially prominent Philip H. Philbin Jr., stock market operator, pleaded guilty in federal court today to using the mails to defraud, conspiracy, and violating the national securities act in connection with the sale of Atlas Tack Corporation stock.

They are to be sentenced tomorrow by Federal Judge John C. Knox who received their guilty pleas. Under the law, he may impose on each a total of 67 years' imprisonment and $27,000 fines.

Guilty pleas also were entered for two corporations, McNeil's Financial Service, Inc., of Boston, and Philip H. Philbin Jr., Inc.

Garbo, Stokowski Visit Famous Island of Capri

AMALFI, Italy, March 1.—(AP)

Greta Garbo, of the movies, and Leopold Stokowski, the orchestra conductor, identified as such by the mayor of Ravello, today visited the famous island of Capri together.

The mayor said he had seen their passports and these left no doubt as to the identity of the couple.

The actress and musician, who late last year denied reports of a romance, arrived at Sorrento, on the Bay of Naples, by motor car and boarded a private launch for the island.

It was disclosed that Miss Garbo had been at Ravello, hamlet in the environs of Naples, since February 25, occupying a flower-decked villa overlooking the sea.

Stokowski is known to have been in Rome recently. Miss Garbo was seen leaving the Ravello villa this morning, wearing dark glasses. The housekeeper said she was expected to return in a few days.

After serving four terms as mayor of North Kingsville, Ohio, Mayor Lorenzo T. Wetzel, 60, will relinquish his post to his son, Sterrett Wetzel, 37.

RECEPTION PLANNED TO FILM CHILDREN

Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis of 'Tom Sawyer' Coming Here Tomorrow.

A gala reception is being planned for the child stars who made Tom Sawyer and Becky Thatcher live on the screen.

Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis, of the screen version of the immortal "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," will arrive at 8:35 o'clock tomorrow at the Terminal station amid music of welcome played by the high school bands.

A radio reporter will interview them as they step from the train, and a Boy Scout guard of honor will take them to their hotel behind a police escort.

Tommy and Ann will be guests of honor at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's Club and then will be taken on a tour of the city, returning to Loew's Grand for a personal appearance at 4 o'clock.

After the stage appearance, the stars will be taken on a visit to the Scottish Rite hospital, where a preview of the picture, "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," will be shown for the children there. The juvenile stars will return for a second personal appearance at 7 o'clock at the Grand.

Ann and Tommy will leave Thursday night for Birmingham. "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" will open its regular run at Loew's Grand March 11, after being shown in midnight preview Saturday night.

This is Tommy's first motion picture role. He was picked up by a talent scout who saw in him the answer to the studio's dream of finding a boy to play Mark Twain's "Tom."

Ann has appeared in several minor parts before, her most important being "These Three."

NLRB ISSUES CHARGE AGAINST BUS LINE

CINCINNATI, March 1.—(AP)—

The National Labor Relations Board issued a complaint tonight against the Atlantic Greyhound Lines, Inc., of Charleston, W. Va., charging the firm interfered with an election by employees to determine their bargaining agent.

The complaint, issued by Regional Director Phillips, alleged that the firm, which operates in 11 states, since September 14, 1937, had discouraged employees from joining the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and "coerced and intimidated them" to vote in favor of the Interstate Motor Transportation Employees' Union in the election October 4-12, 1937.

PHILIP MORRIS VOTES DIVIDEND ON COMMON

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—

Philip Morris & Co., cigarette manufacturers, ordered a "year-end dividend" of $4.50 a common share, payable March 24 to holders of record March 11.

Company paid 75 cents a share on common in October, 1937, and also January 3 last. The principal plant is in Virginia.

CHAMBER BLOCKS FRENCH LABOR CODE

Premier Chautemps Unable To End Strife in Parliament.

PARIS, March 1.—(AP)—The battle between the French senate and chamber over Premier Chautemps' labor code moved into its fourth day despite the premier's efforts to end the parliamentary strife.

The chamber refused to accept senate changes in the original conciliation and arbitration bill and passed it for a third time, 390 to 203.

Main points of their differences were:

The senate insisted that if cost of living indices rose 10 per cent or more and "the national economy" permitted, salaries would be adjusted proportionately. The chamber eliminated the national economy clause and made the adjustment automatic in the event of a rise of five per cent in six months. The senate finally agreed to the five per cent clause.

Both houses stopped their clocks and officially it was still February 28, when the old labor arbitration statutes lapsed at midnight.

BETTER LABOR ACT HOPED BY F. D. R.

President Has No Immediate Plan; Asks More Press Space for NLRB.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP) President Roosevelt told a press conference today he hoped the national labor relations act, as well as the social security and other administration-sponsored laws, could be improved each year. He added he had no immediate plans for amending the labor act.

While giving this information in response to questions, the President opened the interview with a statement asking the press to give more space to cases settled by the Labor Relations Board.

He said he had been requested in approximately 15 letters received from both manufacturers and employees to pass along a complaint in the papers the cases settled by the board but only those which are not settled.

He said the letters complained that the papers either did not print the settlements or put them on some far inside page.

The President also said he would send to congress sometime in the future an informative message on the world phosphate situation.

Asked whether he was studying the shortage of phosphates, Mr. Roosevelt said he was and would give congress his information in the message. He added the message would propose no specific program but would deal with the relation of phosphates to human civilization and the food supply.

GOERING THUNDERS WARNING TO EUROPE

by, as one semi-official commentator put it, "clinging to the doctrine of Geneva and adhering to military pacts with other powers."

4. Warning Chamberlain that only a "German peace" would be acceptable to the Nazis.

In conveying the latter warning, Germany's No. 1 man said: "May the spirit of comradeship always be an exemplary one in our air force. In that case the force will be a guarantor of German peace."

"I confess openly, however, it will be terrible, once it is ordered into action. Then we will throw condescension into those who attack us; then there will be nothing to deter us from uncurbed recklessness. All obstacles wherever we may find them will be overcome."

The air minister, seemingly beginning a merely historical review, calmly traced Germany's defenselessness in the years immediately after the World War.

His "Cowardly Pacifism."

He spoke of the days when Friedrich Ebert was president and of the time when Paul von Hindenburg was the head of the nation and on three occasions he denounced the republican regime for "cowardly pacifism."

Then he outlined the growth of the air force, declaring that the resurrection of German military air power began in 1933 a few days after Hitler came to power.

It was "camouflaged" at first, he pointed out, but later the development was carried out openly.

Then, on March 1, 1935, he said, the military shackles of the Treaty of Versailles were thrown off and Hitler could show a skeleton air force to astonished Germans.

At the same time, Dr. Angriff, organ of Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, unwittingly put a pinprick into the armor of invincibility of the air force.

It said "extraordinarily hazy weather" prevented "for the time being" planned demonstrations by the von Richthofen squadron.

fense will be outlined to the house of commons. Land defense plans will be submitted Thursday and the naval program Friday.

Then, with the whole program before it, the house of commons will open debate Monday on Britain's mounting defense structure. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain announced that he would open the debate himself.

Today Chamberlain called most of his cabinet together to discuss what to do about Japan's refusal to disclose whether she has built or intends to build battleships of more than 35,000 tons, but reached no decision on whether to retaliate by building warships of greater tonnage. These three powers, but not Japan, are bound by treaty to the 35,000-ton limit.

HOUSE GROUP FAVORS NAVAL TEST FUND

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP) Legislation to authorize construction of a dirigible and experimentation with "mystery" warships won the approval of the house naval committee today as part of the $1,710,000 naval expansion program.

During a two-hour session described by Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, as "a love feast," the committee recommended a $300,000 experimental fund for the navy which, members said, called "mosquito fleets" and other types of naval vessels.

In addition to a $150,000 appropriation advocated by President Roosevelt for experimentation, the committee voted to authorize the navy to negotiate contracts with inventors for a similar amount.

Of the direct appropriation, $500,000 was earmarked for the "mystery" ships and $3,000,000 for construction of a dirigible about the size of the decommissioned Los Angeles.

Licenses Unclaimed By 3,500 Drivers

Three thousand, five hundred unclaimed drivers' licenses are being held by the Department of Public Safety, Major Phil Brewster, director announced yesterday.

Brewster said the lot had been mailed out but had been returned by the post office marked "unclaimed." He urged motorists who have not received their licenses after application to write the department a card giving correct addresses.

MARIETTA FORUM CHANGES SCHEDULE

Sessions Planned Wednesday, Not Tuesday Nights.

MARIETTA, March 1.—A last-hour change in plans, necessitated by a conflict with other meetings, late today moved up until tomorrow night the opening of the 11-week forum series to be jointly sponsored by the Cobb County Times and the Emory Institute of Citizenship.

D. B. Lassefer, state director of the National Youth Administration, will be the initial speaker, and will conduct a round-table discussion tomorrow night on the question: "How Can We Conserve Our Youth?"

Dr. Cullen B. Gosnell, of Emory University, and Miss Margaret Carpenter, associate editor of the Times, in joint charge of the forum series, have announced the next speaker will be Dr. Harvey W. Cox, who will discuss "Conservation of Our Spiritual Resources."

All sessions of the forum will be held on Wednesday nights, instead of Tuesday nights as previously announced.

BABIES' CONTEST

Popularity Show Finals Coming Up Friday.

With finals in the American Legion Auxiliary's baby popularity contest coming up Friday, 8-year-old Monie Kathryn Bell loomed as the favorite yesterday when she won the 500 bonus votes, giving her a total of 12,400 votes.

Billy Lightfoot, with 10,800 votes and Leonidas Lunsford, with 10,700 votes, are runners-up so far. Preliminary judging of beauty and personality of the contestants starts at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Cups will be awarded the winners in the finals Friday at the Shrine mosque.

A benefit dance and floor show will follow the finals, Harry Barfield, master of ceremonies, said.

WIFE ASKS FOX'S BODY BE LEFT IN JUNGLES

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., March 1.—(AP)—The widow of Dr. Frederick J. Fox, who died on Devil's Hole Island, British Guiana, while searching for the missing aviator, Paul Redfern, asked tonight that efforts to return her husband's body to this country be abandoned.

Speaking over a short-wave broadcasting station, Mrs. Gertrude E. Fox appealed to surviving members of the Waldeck expedition, of which he was a member, to give up any thought of bringing his body home.

Dr. Fox died last month from jungle fever in the Cuyuni river region, where Theodore J. Waldeck and his wife are still pursuing their hunt for Redfern.

GEORGE F. LONGINO ENDORSES

JAS. D. BAZEMORE

Speaking as a Friend and Neighbor of Mr. Bazemore, Mr. Longino wholeheartedly commends him and his deputies to the people of Fulton County. Mr. Longino spoke over WGST last evening—not as a County Commissioner but as a private citizen and taxpayer.

Following is the address delivered by Mr. Longino:

SEVERAL days ago I made a public statement to the effect that I would endorse no candidate or candidates for the office of Commissioner of Fulton County at the election to be held tomorrow, March 2. As a Commissioner I did not, and do not, feel that it behooves me as a hold-over Commissioner to undertake to influence the people of this County in the selection of men to serve on the Board of County Commissioners. Two years ago the citizenry of Fulton County clearly demonstrated that they would brook no interference on the part of Commissioners in office attempting to select those officials with whom they would serve.

Obeying that mandate I have refrained from taking a part in the Commissioners' race that will be held tomorrow. I pledge myself to co-operate and work with those men the good people of Fulton County honor by electing County Commissioners.

Tonight, I wish to preface my remarks by stating my appearance on this program is in the role of a County Commissioner, but as a private citizen and taxpayer of this great County. Voluntarily, I am appearing in behalf of a friend and neighbor who is a candidate for sheriff, Mr. James D. Bazemore. I have taken this action after due consideration, and am doing so without regard to the possible political effect this action may have.

—confident that the people of Fulton County will allow me the expression I desire to make as a private citizen. Knowing Jim Bazemore as I do, I feel that it is my duty to speak to the people of Fulton County in his behalf, in order that they might better know his qualifications for the office he seeks.

During the seven years that I have served as a member of the Board of Commissioners I have tried to work in the interest of the people and have endeavored to institute measures of efficiency and economy in the functioning of our County Government. The recent city and County survey made by Dr. Thomas H. Reed discloses that many improvements have been made in the operation of our County; and I am now giving serious consideration to the recommendations he has made for an even better government in Georgia's greatest county. Some of his suggestions and recommendations have constitutional prohibitions; but there are many recommendations that can be instituted and I shall busy myself during the next few months carrying these out. Instituting changes for efficiency and economy of operation in our Government, oftentimes meets with opposition and criticism and putting into effect the many improvements instituted today has placed me in a position where I have sometimes been accused of being a dictator. In my conduct of County affairs I have endeavored to follow the same principles that would have guided me in the conduct of a private business—instilling those changes and making those improvements that would give to the taxpayers of Fulton County the most service for their tax dollar. However, I am confident that the people of Fulton County will not be misled by such an erroneous charge—knowing that at all times I have endeavored to serve our people as to the best of my ability. I am willing to stand whatever criticism may be necessary as long as I have the satisfaction and consciousness of knowing that I am acting in the interest of the people of this County—dedicating my official activities to the end that Fulton County may be a better place in which to live.

Again, I would like to reiterate, most emphatically, that I am not attempting to dictate to our good people in regard to the special election that is to be held tomorrow. As an individual, I have a right to appear before the people of this County and inform them as to the issues and acquaint them with the problems that vitally affect Fulton County's interest. As you know, the special election for sheriff to fill the unexpired term of J. I. Lowry is different and unlike the regular Democratic Primary that is to be held on the same date. In the first place, I believe the law should be changed so that in the event of the death of a Head of a Department, be it sheriff, Ordinary, Tax Collector, Tax Receiver or clerk of the Superior Court, the chief deputy would automatically become Head of the Department until the next regular Democratic Primary. Such a change in our laws would eliminate expensive special elections, and would eliminate the possibility of service being disrupted. Upon the death of Captain Lowry the Commissioners of Fulton County, under the law, were charged with appointing a sheriff until a special election could be called to elect a successor for the unexpired term. Immediately after Captain Lowry's death a petition was presented to the Board of County Commissioners, signed by all except one of Captain Lowry's deputies requesting that the Board appoint Mr. James D. Bazemore, Chief Deputy, to the position of sheriff. Upon their recommendation the Board unanimously appointed and elected Mr. Bazemore as acting Sheriff of Fulton County. This action was not taken without due consideration. I was prompted to vote for Mr. Bazemore because of his twenty years' experience in this office; because he was Chief Deputy under Captain Lowry; because he was endorsed wholeheartedly by the men in his department and, lastly, because I knew him to be a man of the highest character—exemplifying those qualifications and characteristics that are needed by men in public life. A special election such as confronts us tomorrow is unlike a regular Democratic Primary. In a regular Primary the nominee selected by the people has several months to familiarize himself and his staff with the duties of the office they are to assume. However, in the special election for sheriff the nominee takes office immediately—bringing about a possibility of disrupted service to the citizenry of Fulton County. Failure on the part of our people to endorse Mr. Bazemore tomorrow will mean that 55 trained men and women will not return for duty on March 3, but will be replaced by 55 men and women who are inexperienced and untrained.

In Fulton County, under the Board of Commissioners, we have a police department consisting of some 75 men, and a Public Works Department with a personnel of more than 400 people—all trained in the performance of their respective duties. It would be inconceivable, in my opinion, for the Board of County Commissioners to meet and with one stroke of the pen pass a resolution removing from office the personnel of these two departments and substituting therein inexperienced men. Imagine the result of such a procedure—the confusion and general inability to cope with the duties of those departments. Yet in effect this is what we will do if we remove from office the 55 men and women who are now working in the sheriff's office. I submit to you that it is just as unlikely and unreasonable that you should displace a loyal, honest, and efficient officer of the County and his corps of deputies, as it would be for the Board of Commissioners to arbitrarily displace our POLICE FORCE, OUR ENGINEERS, FOREMEN, and OTHER well trained officials in various departments. You will note that the opposition has not charged Mr. Bazemore as being inefficient, disinterested, or have they given any good reason why he should be disqualified as sheriff of Fulton County.

The record of the present sheriff's office has been good—outstanding civic leaders, lawyers, and other citizens coming in daily contact with this office remark as to its efficiency and courtesy in transacting the business of this department. The County Auditors testify the many millions of dollars handled in this office have been minutely and painstakingly accounted for. The Judges and Courts of Fulton County testify that these men have served well and efficiently in office and have carried out the duties in an orderly and efficient manner. This being true, why should we, the people of Fulton County, say to these men and women that their services are no longer required? Jim Bazemore and his associates were elected for a period of four years. They have served only a fraction over one year of this term and now suddenly and unexpectedly are encountering opposition in their endeavor to serve the term of office to which the people of Fulton County elected them. It is to the interest of Fulton County, its people, and the Democratic form of government by which we are governed, that these men and women be allowed to continue in office—to complete that tenure of service for which they have been designated.

Now, briefly, a few words in regard to Jim Bazemore. Mr. Bazemore has been my friend and neighbor for many years and during this time he has endeavored himself to me and the community because of his ability, initiative, and sterling character. Twenty years ago he began work in the sheriff's office at the bottom and because of his ability and conduct has risen through the ranks until today he enjoys the high office of Sheriff of Fulton County.

Jim Bazemore comes from a family which for generations has contributed to the civic and social life of the community. His character and honesty are unquestioned. He has been an active citizen in College Park for many years—engaging in the things that mean for the development of this community. He has been active in church work, serving today as Chairman of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church. He has been honored by serving as Worshipful Master of his Masonic Lodge. Never has there been a drive for funds, for civic, religious or fraternal purposes in his community in which Jim Bazemore has failed to put his shoulder to the wheel and lend his influence in making it a success.

Jim Bazemore is eminently qualified for the office of Sheriff, and in addition is associated with a corps of deputies that are qualified and are trained in the performance of their duties. The personnel of his ticket is exceptionally strong—composed of men and women who are leaders in the communities they represent. Mr. Gordon Hardy, Chief Deputy, on Mr. Bazemore's ticket, is an outstanding citizen of Atlanta and Fulton County. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy exemplify that type of citizenry that is deserving of important positions—Gordon Hardy has dedicated his life as a useful and energetic citizen. Let me suggest that you visit the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Simmons in the old Eighth Ward and decide for yourselves if Mr. Simmons is deserving of your consideration. I could take you out to the old 10th Ward and into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Holland, and let you see if he represents the community life that deserves your consideration. Then visit the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed L. Rhodes in Alpharetta and see his family and witness the kind of home life they enjoy and know for yourself the fine Christian gentleman that he is. Too, you might visit West End, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Camp, see their surroundings and the type of man Mr. Bazemore has in Mr. Camp. The home and life of Mr. and Mrs. Seab Sharp, out in the old Fifth Ward, typifies the kind of people that are associated with Mr. Bazemore.

I could go on through the list of the 55 deputies, inviting you into their communities and homes, and you would find them to be rated among the leaders—all good, substantial citizens of the community in which they reside.

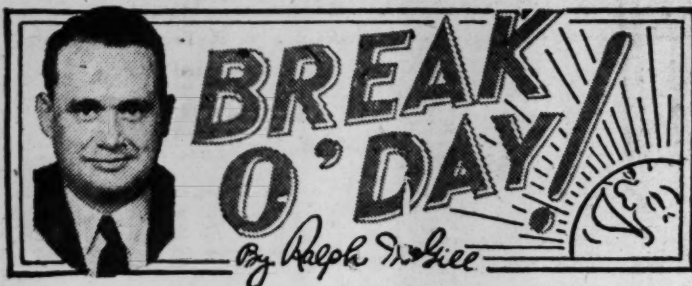

Doubtless the average citizen is trying to determine which candidate he shall vote for in the special election tomorrow. However, I do not look upon this election in that light—knowing as I do that Jim Bazemore and his associates are entitled to fulfill the term of office for which they were elected. As I have said before, Mr. Bazemore has risen from the ranks and has had a long and successful career as a law enforcement officer and executive. He has been sheriff of FULTON COUNTY FOR ONLY SEVEN WEEKS, and THE REAL ISSUE TO BE DECIDED at tomorrow's election is whether or not he and his deputies, by their conduct in office, are justified in continuing to serve you in an efficient and courteous manner. They have been good at that. The servants and I do not believe the people of Fulton County will reward them for their services by arbitrarily removing them from office.

My friends, in conclusion, I would like to urge that all citizens of Fulton County go to the polls tomorrow and vote. The right to cast a vote is a possession that should be prized by all people—realizing that this right is an opportunity for a part in the government of Fulton County. Too, in tomorrow's election the people of Fulton County are asked to pass on the merits of the early primary. The Atlanta League of Women Voters, the Merchants Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Atlanta Real Estate Board, and other wide-awake civic organizations are to be congratulated on the splendid campaign they have conducted in behalf of this important issue. I urge that you give this matter your earnest and serious consideration before casting a vote because it means much to the welfare of Fulton County. Again, in closing let me urge that you take a more active interest in the affairs of your County—that you, by your vote on tomorrow, manifest a desire to co-operate with those endeavoring to render a true service. In this manner all forces, the people and the public officials, will go hand in hand in their united effort towards a better and greater Fulton County. Thank you.

GEORGE F. LONGINO.

Three-Hour Workout Opens Cracker Drills; 3 Hurlers Absent

(Editor's Note: Break o' Day is written today by Jack Troy, acting sports editor of The Constitution, pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 1.—A smart pitcher can work as successfully on a batter's strength as he can on his weakness, in the opinion of Guy Green, Cracker coach, who has been around and about in the game of baseball.

It's a thought that isn't often advanced, but is actually a practice carried out by many moundsmen. They don't follow that system entirely, of course. They mix it up.

The main essential in pitching to a batter's strength is control. The hurler, to be at all successful in the execution of the idea, must be able to pitch to a batter's strength—bad.

In other words, he must be able to put the ball almost where the batter likes it, but not quite. In that way he keeps the batter offering at the pitches, and finally gets him out of there because he never does get just what he thought was something right down his alley, so to speak.

"Harry Kelley pitches that way," Guy Green continued. "But he does not follow any set style in pitching. He works on the batters' weaknesses, too."

"Kelley always has had the sort of control that enabled him to pitch to strength or weakness alike in a most successful manner."

Guy Green himself followed the practice of working on a hitter's strength. He never had any great years in the Texas or Southern leagues, but he always came up with a fine earned run average.

"Young pitchers can help themselves a lot by studying batters. They can learn plenty that way. It isn't always best to leave it entirely up to the catcher because four eyes are always better than two, just the same as two heads are better than one, even if they are only pinheads."

"Then, too, if the young pitcher knows what this fellow can hit and that fellow can't hit it tends to give him increased confidence."

"There are a lot of angles to pitching and they can't all be learned overnight. It takes practice and studious application granted that, to begin with, the pitcher has ability."

"While on the subject, it might be well to mention that no club is stronger than its pitching. That's why the chunkers report ahead of the other players. They need more time to get in shape. Conditioning of the legs is fully as important as conditioning of the arms. A pitcher, of course, is no stronger than his legs."

"The arm and the spirit may be willing, but if the legs aren't right, a pitcher can't be effective. So running will be one of the main items. If the legs are in shape, the arm will come along."

THE FELLER CASE.

A story circulating in the inner circles of baseball has it that Bob Feller's trouble has been in his legs rather than his arm.

He takes a long stride and the story goes that he pulled a leg muscle which interfered with his delivery. It is entirely possible.

Bill Beckman, of the Cracker staff, had a tough time getting started again after he was hit on the foot by a line drive in batting practice. He couldn't come off the mound naturally, and he was conscious of the pain on every pitch.

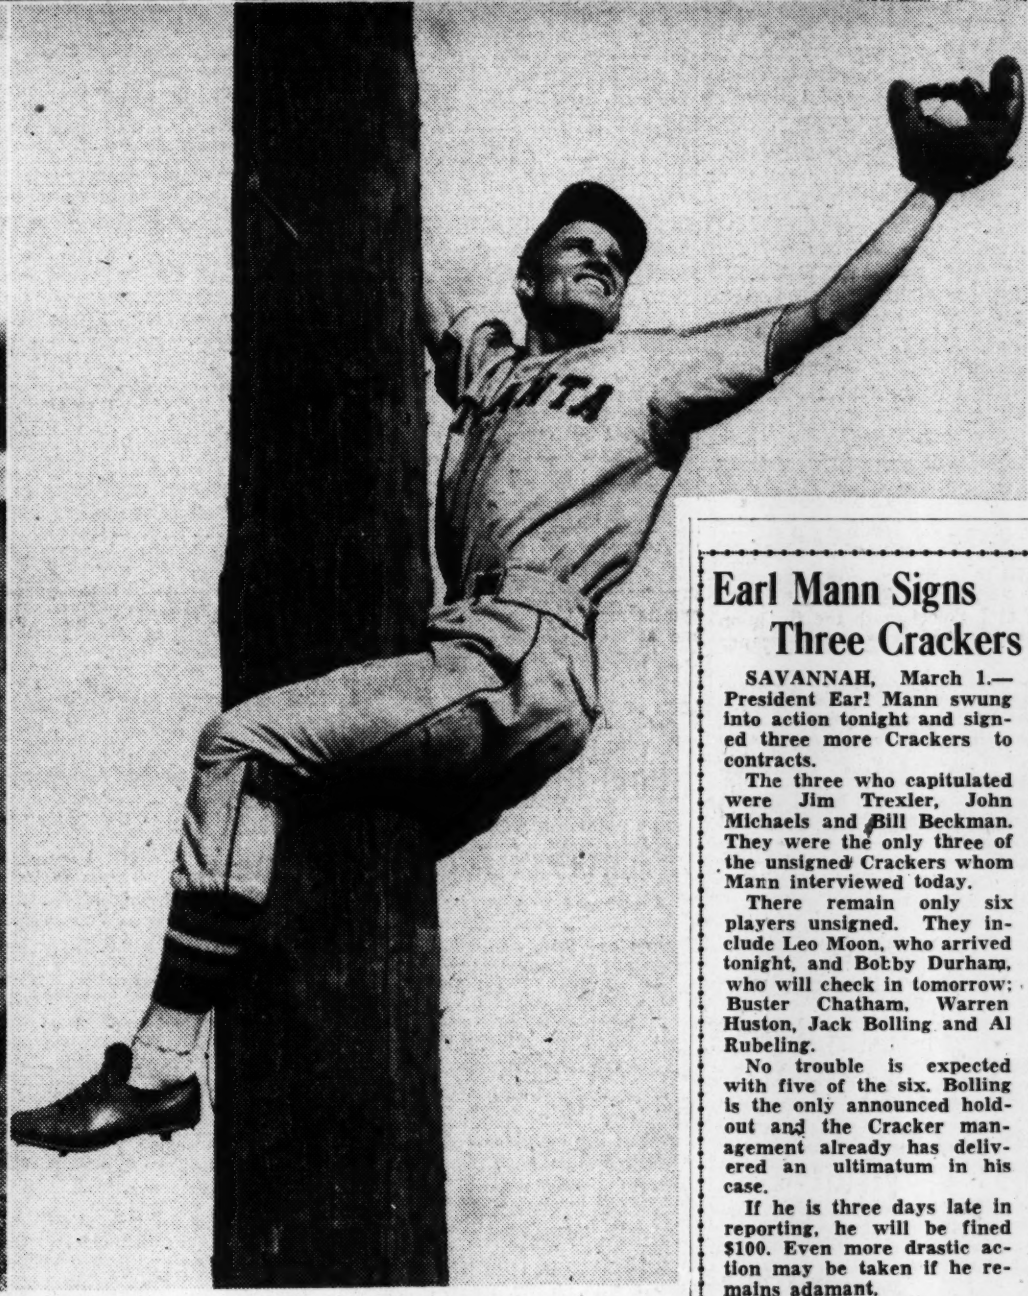

In connection with pitchers' legs, one always thinks of the story they used to tell on Uncle Wilbert Robinson. Robbie always insisted he could take any athlete with a great pair of legs and make a pitcher out of him.

So a test was arranged. They put this fellow behind a screen that hid him from the waist up. He had a handsome pair of underpinning and Uncle Robbie was very positive that he would do.

The screen was removed and it was revealed the fellow had

Mayor Grooms Cracker Club At Savannah

Mayor Robert M. Hitch, of Savannah, and Andy Smith, Chatham county commissioner, extended an official greeting to the Atlanta Cracker ball club upon their arrival in Savannah Monday to begin spring training for the '38 pennant race. Shown above are Coach-Manager Dick Niehaus, Cracker Manager Paul Richards, Commissioner Smith, and Mayor

Hitch, who is seen shaking hands with Richards. Below the boys are shown participating in the first drill. Jim Trexler, pitcher and outfielder, at the left, has just taken a healthy cut at the ball. It would have been a home run, too, except that Marshall Mauldin scampered atop a pole in centerfield and is set to haul in the ball.

Eight Tech Cagers Off Tonight for Meet

Yellow Jackets Look Ragged in Last Scrimmage; Ed Jones Will Play.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Eight members of the Georgia Tech basketball team, twice defeated this season, will leave tonight at 6 o'clock for the annual Southeastern conference tournament at Baton Rouge, La.

Players making the trip are Ed Jones, George Smith, Junior Anderson, Bill Jordan, Bo Johnston, Fletcher Sims, Joe Ebdon and Peffall. Coach Roy Mundorff and Manager Silva complete the party. The team will arrive in New Orleans early Thursday morning and motor to Baton Rouge for their first game of the meet that night, playing the winner of the Alabama-Vanderbilt game in the afternoon.

A light workout is on schedule for this afternoon before the team leaves. Ed Jones, who has been out with a sprained ankle, did not start in the scrimmage but took his turn later on.

Yesterday scrimmage was ragged. The players looked dull and listless and displayed very little offense and even less defense.

Ed Jones, who has been out with a sprained ankle, did not start in the scrimmage but took his turn later on.

Despite a reinjury of his leg in the Auburn game Monday night, Jones' ankle appeared to withstand the pressure put upon it in the rough work and he will probably be able to play more than anyone expected.

However, he will be slowed down considerably, and George Smith or Joe Ebdon will see plenty

BROWN DEFEATS DIAMOND EASILY

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 1.—(P)—Ben Brown, hard-hitting Atlanta boxer, piled up a wide margin on points to take a 10-round decision from Al Diamond, of Paterson, N. J., tonight. Brown weighed 164 and Diamond 165.

Brown had his foe groggy in the third and ninth but couldn't find an opening for a knockout punch.

Only Darlington School, of Rome, is not entered, and the dates were conflicting with another tournament in which Darlington was entered.

Commercial High defeated North Fulton for the 1937 title, but the Typists are not rated favorites, due to mediocre play in both the city and G. I. A. tournaments.

LaGrange and Griffin High, two members on the southern end of the conference, are seeded No. 1 and No. 2, due to their fine play in the independent schedules.

Every team has been beaten for one of the most unusual pre-tournament records in the history of the conference.

And with every team in the defeated class, competition appears to be about the best in the state in tournament play.

Fulton High, one of the sponsors, and R. E. Lee, of Thomaston, drew the opening assignment at 2:30 o'clock. Newman and Commercial will follow at 3:30 with Athens and Spalding closing the afternoon program.

Four games will be played Thursday night, starting with Gainesville and Griffin at 6:30.

Earl Mann Signs Three Crackers

SAVANNAH, March 1.—President Earl Mann swung into action tonight and signed three more Crackers to contracts.

The three who capitulated were Jim Trexler, John Michaels and Bill Beckman. They were the only three of the unsigned Crackers whom Mann interviewed today.

There remain only six players unsigned. They include Leo Moon, who arrived tonight, and Bobby Durham, who will check in tomorrow; Buster Chatham, Warren Huston, Jack Bolling and Al Rubelling.

No trouble is expected with five of the six. Bolling is the only announced hold-out and the Cracker management already has delivered an ultimatum in his case.

If he is three days late in reporting, he will be fined $100. Even more drastic action may be taken if he remains adamant.

N. G. I. C. TOURNAMENT OPENS THURSDAY

Fifteen members of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference will hold their last practice sessions of the season today in preparation for the annual tournament, which opens Thursday afternoon on the Fulton High court.

LaGrange and Athens High, two new members of the conference, will make their first bid for a title since joining the conference last fall.

Only Darlington School, of Rome, is not entered, and the dates were conflicting with another tournament in which Darlington was entered.

Commercial High defeated North Fulton for the 1937 title, but the Typists are not rated favorites, due to mediocre play in both the city and G. I. A. tournaments.

TREXLER TO GET PITCHER-BATTER DOUBLE CHANCE

New Skipper Starts
Hurlers Fielding Bunts,
Throwing to Third.

By JACK TROY.
SAVANNAH, March 1.—Paul Richards made his debut as manager of the Atlanta Crackers today and the party was termed a complete success.

It was a very systematic three-hour workout and none of the players were allowed to overdo it. Before they ever went out to work, Richards called the batterymen together and made a short but pointed talk.

"Pitchers, take it easy, especially with your arms. Don't take any sudden starts. Take care of your legs. We've got plenty of time to get in shape. That's all," he said.

FIELDING BUNTS.

Richards started the pitchers out immediately practicing fielding bunts and throwing to third. That's the play, of course, with men on first and second. Later on, they practiced fielding bunts and throwing to first.

The pitchers hailed this practice with delight. It's the first time in years Cracker pitchers have concentrated on fielding bunts.

Bill Beckman said, "That's a great idea. Heretofore we'd start the season without having any such practice and naturally we had forgotten how to do it well. Good bunters always had the jump on us."

The big idea is, of course, that the Crackers will have an extra fielder on the diamond. It means a lot to a club to have pitchers who can field bunts.

THREE MISSING.

Only three players were missing from the opening workout—Bobby Durham, Darwin Cobb and Leo Moon, all pitchers.

Those present included Pitchers Pezzullo, Evans, Marsh, Miller, Trexler, Michaels, Beckman, Trexler, Hammons, Robinson, Davis, Stewart, Sunkel, and Work; Catchers Richards, Williams, Van Antwerp and Bolton, and Outfielders Eddie Rose and Marshall Mauldin.

There were 20 players in all. Coach Guy Green and Mauldin and Rose gave Richards a hand in conditioning the pitchers.

PEPPER GAMES.

Pepper games, running, fielding bunts, throwing to a catcher and a brief session of batting practice largely composed the opening day order of events.

Eddie Rose pitched to batting practice and proved just to Beckman's liking. The Cracker right-hander, who always has been an unusually fine hitter for a pitcher, slammed two drives into the left field stands. He was the first Cracker to go for four bases. He ran both of them out. Mauldin also took kindly to one of Rose's offerings and parked it out of the lot.

Manager Richards has decided that he will try Jim Trexler in a combination role—pitcher and outfielder. Trexler still wants to try his hand at pitching and Richards is agreeable to letting him double in brass. Trexler is a good hitter.

MAINN ARRIVES.

President Earl Mann arrived this morning and viewed the opening workout. Mann was delighted with the weather. A bright sun beamed in a cloudless sky and soon dispelled the early morning chill.

There are six left-handed pitchers in camp now and the list will be swelled to eight when Moon and Cobb arrive. Moon is driving here from New Orleans with Chick Autry and is expected to be on hand for tomorrow's drill. The other southpaws are Work, Evans, Pezzullo, Sunkel, Michaels and Trexler.

Savannah people are sold on the idea that Pezzullo, who is a class man, will make the Crackers a fine pitcher. Evans, leading pitcher in the Sally league last season, also is figured as a good southpaw rookie prospect, along with Frank Werk, who formerly pitched for Nashville. He finished last season with Cordele.

WRITER SURPRISED.

W. D. McMillan, sports editor of the Savannah Morning News, who saw Jack Bolling play all last season, was surprised at his attitude toward the Atlanta club. Bolling, the rookie first baseman acquired from Macon, refused to sign his 1938 contract.

"It's my idea," McMillan said, "that he's not ready for that kind of competition. I'd say he needed another year of seasoning. He's only hurting himself by refusing an offer of twice the salary he made last season."

Rose's idea about the opening workout was that all the boys will eat and sleep well tonight.

City's Army Day Celebration Outlined by Military Order

Martial Music Downtown, But No Formal Parade Planned, Captain William J. Cordes Tells Meeting; Proclamations by Governor, Mayor To Be Sought.

Plans for Atlanta's participation in Army Day April 6 were outlined yesterday by Captain William J. Cordes at the monthly meeting of the Military Order of the World War.

Captain Cordes, who is chairman of the Army Day committee for the organization, said Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield will be asked to issue proclamations, and that soldiers and veterans will be requested to wear uniforms on that day.

Bands of several patriotic organizations will play on downtown streets, but there will be no formal parade, according to the plans outlined by Captain Cordes. John M. Slaton, former Governor of Georgia, spoke on "Subversive-isms." He pointed out fallacies in Fascism, Nazism, Pacifism and Communism, contrasting them with the American system of government.

His talk was in a series sponsored by the organization dealing with the military strength and manpower of this country. The organization is composed of officers of the World War.

John M. Slaton Jr., commander of the Atlanta post, presided. H. H. Clark, adjutant, submitted reports on membership and progress of the organization. About 60 members attended.

CAR-TRAIN CRASH KILLS TWO OUTSIDE TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., March 1.—(AP)—An automobile-train collision today took the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Scott, each about 70, winter visitors from Madison, Conn., who were killed at a grade crossing of the Seaboard Air Line railway near the eastern city limits of Tampa.

Constable Graves, who investigated, said neither the train nor the car was traveling fast.

WIFE BEATER SOBS UNDER 20 LASHES

Well-Marked Prisoner Taken to Hospital; Wife Barred From Scene.

BALTIMORE, March 1.—(AP)—Clyde Miller, lashed 20 times as a punishment for wife-beating, was taken to the city jail hospital tonight, although Warden Harry Price said he had suffered no apparent ill effects from his ordeal at the whipping post.

The 37-year-old printer earlier had lain face down on a cot in the jail where he will spend the next six months as added punishment for beating his wife. His back was criss-crossed with welts raised by the blows of a cat-o-nine-tails.

Shortly before noon, Miller was led from his cell to the jail lobby where the black whipping post and cat-o-nine tails waited.

Miller, eyes downcast as he was strapped to the post, cringed under the first two blows, whimpered at the third, and then groaned in pain at each succeeding blow.

There were no women among the 50 witnesses. Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, 33, who had said she wanted to see her husband flogged, was not admitted.

She waited in a car at the jail entrance, eager for a description of the lashing, and commented: "I'd like to give him a couple more."

Miller once served one year's imprisonment for a previous beating of his wife.

ANDERSON NAMED STATE PENAL AIDE

Board Selects George Fisher as Director of Prison Industries.

REIDSVILLE, March 1.—(AP)—The Georgia Penal Board today elected A. M. "Phil" Anderson, of Perry, its youngest member, as executive secretary, and commissioned George A. Fisher to continue as director of prison industries.

Mr. Anderson will maintain a full-time office at the state's new $1,500,000 prison near here.

Other officials yet to be named by the board are a warden, a supervisor to direct prison farm work and a director of naval stores work.

Governor Rivers met at the prison today with the five-man board he named to administer the state penal system, under legislation enacted by the recent special session of the general assembly.

Besides Anderson, the other board members are Chairman A. O. Blalock, of Fayetteville; J. A. Mills, of Sylvania; Dr. John R. Lewis, of Louisville; and Max V. Tolbert, of Calhoun.

Anderson also will handle public relations. The board of regents of the University System of Georgia will be asked to recommend a farm supervisor, and the state forestry department will be asked for a similar recommendation for naval stores work.

The penal board will ask the State Health Department to institute a program similar to that carried on at United States Veterans' hospitals.

Guards will be selected through a training school along lines of the state patrol classes, to be trained by competent prison executives and Department of Justice agents.

This school, the board said, also will be open to county commissioners who wish to send their guards for special training.

The electric chair was being installed here today, following its removal from the Milledgeville prison, and will be ready for use current to be turned on in a few days. The next execution will be held here.

2,000,000 NEGROES 'READY TO COLONIZE'

Bilbo To Ask Funds for Migration to Liberia.

JACKSON, Miss., March 1.—(AP) United States Senator Theodore G. Bilbo today predicted complete decimation of the pure Anglo-Saxon race throughout the United States unless negroes are colonized.

The junior senator from Mississippi foresaw "racial suicide, even in the south, if the negro and the white man continue to live side by side."

Senator Bilbo said he would offer an amendment to the $250,000,000 federal appropriation for emergency relief to provide an "adequate sum" for the transportation of negroes to Liberia, African negro republic that has invited negro colonization.

He said 2,000,000 negroes in the United States had signified they would voluntarily migrate to Liberia "and several million more would do so."

'I'd Like To Give Him a Couple More,' Says Wife

Here is Clyde Miller spreadeagled to the Baltimore whipping post yesterday as 220-pound Sheriff Deegan flogged him 20 times with a cat-o-nine tails for beating his wife. Miller was taken to the prison hospital last night.

Mrs. Clyde Miller, severely beaten by her husband, was refused admittance to the Baltimore prison where her husband was lashed 20 times. There were no women among the 50 spectators. Mrs. Miller waited outside, commenting when the flogging was described to her: "I'd like to give him a couple more!"

Many Other Atlantans Are $1 Richer for Telling The Constitution of News-Worth Sons and Daughters—Such as Baby That Baked Auto Tag.

Sons and daughters led The Constitution's Photo Tip parade last week, with five stories and pictures of members of interesting families.

The first prize winner of $5 was an Atlanta woman, who requested that her name not be made public, for her Photo Tip on the Roberson twins.

The story and picture of the Roberson twins, Beatrice and Bernice, 19, and Marshall and Merlin, 10, appeared on the first page of The Constitution last Thursday.

The two pairs of twins are identical. In fact, the boys look so much alike that their mother can't tell them apart. The twins are children of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Roberson, of 522 Grant street, S. E.

Several prizes of $1 were awarded. These included a dollar to Mrs. R. C. Willingham, of Route 4, Atlanta, for a Photo Tip about her three sons, Coney, 17, Billy, 15, and Jack, 12, all of whom were born on February 19.

Leap Year Baby.
Mrs. J. H. Morgan, of 1032 Oakview road, Decatur, also won a dollar. Her Photo Tip concerned her daughter, Mrs. June Forsyth, who was born February 28, 1918, and her son, Pat Morgan, a leap year "baby" who was born February 29, 1920.

Mandy Carmichael, maid of Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Barnett, of 1327 Miller Reed avenue, S. E., was another dollar winner. Mandy sent in a Photo Tip about two-year-old Talton Barnett, who placed newly-purchased license tags in the oven.

ENTOMBED TERRIER IS RESCUED ALIVE
DUBUQUE, Iowa, March 1.—(AP)—"Spotty," a little black and white fox terrier, was rescued alive and apparently in good condition today from a fox den in which he had been entombed for 260 hours.

He was fed a little milk and removed to the house of his owner, Emmet Simon, of Farley, Iowa. Twelve men had worked day and night for 10 days to retrieve the animal, which was trapped when he wriggled into the fox hole. The rescuers, by blasting and digging through limestone, had reached a depth of 25 feet. There was no sign of the fox.

UNIVERSITY LEADERS TO GUIDE INSTITUTE

Economic and Social Problems of State Will Receive Study.

ATHENS, March 1.—(AP)—Nine members of the University of Georgia faculty were announced today as members of the advisory council for the institute for the study of Georgia problems.

The institute was organized about 10 days ago to devote "its energies to the studies of Georgia conditions, in the hope that the leadership thus provided may make for the good of the state."

Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the university, is chairman of the advisory committee.

Other members are R. P. Stephens, dean of the graduate school, vice chairman; G. H. Boyd, director of the division of biological sciences; A. W. Scott, director of the division of physical sciences; J. H. T. McPherson, director of the division of social sciences; Paul W. Chapman, dean of the college of agriculture; Walter Cocking, dean of the college of education; R. P. Brooks, dean of the school of commerce, director, and J. A. Hosch, dean of the law school.

The announcement from the university added "all members of the faculty who are engaged in type of research which bear directly or indirectly upon economic and social conditions in Georgia are members of the institute."

Efforts will be made to correlate the research carried on at the university with the work of other groups of patriotic Georgians, Dr. Caldwell said.

Dr. Caldwell also said a plan is under consideration to "devote the summer session of the Institute of Public Affairs to a discussion of economic and social problems of the state. It is proposed to turn the attention of the institute during the next few sessions to a consideration of problems of an economic and social character."

RELIEF FUND BILL SENT TO PRESIDENT

Congressional Action on $250,000,000 Emergency Measure Completed.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP) A $250,000,000 emergency relief appropriation, overwhelmingly approved by congress, went to the White House today for signature by President Roosevelt.

Congressional action was completed when the house accepted, on a 336-to-9 vote, a joint senate-house committee's compromise between bills the two chambers passed originally.

President Roosevelt initiated the appropriation February 10 when he wrote Speaker Bankhead of the house that hundreds of thousands of needy unemployed had applied for relief work recently but could not be helped with the available funds. Congress had appropriated $1,500,000,000 for the fiscal year ending July 1.

Audrey Williams, acting WPA administrator, stepped up the March relief program today. He authorized the addition of 500,000 persons to the work relief rolls, bringing the total job quota to 2,500,000.

The conference report on the relief bill eliminated from the original measure a house amendment denying relief funds to aliens who had not filed citizenship papers.

Flagman 32 Years Retires From Road

John A. Terrell, 65, flagman and baggagemaster for the Southern railway for 32 years, retired Monday.

Although a good part of his life has been spent on a moving train, mostly between Atlanta and Greenville, S. C., Terrell says he has only had one trip. And that was on his only vacation. He and his wife are now planning a trip to Washington.

Otherwise, he plans to occupy himself with his flower garden at his home, 183 North Warren street, N. E., and take things easy.

Randolph-Macon Honorary Group Names Betty Taylor as Member

By Sally Forth.

SIGNAL honor was paid Betty Taylor at Randolph-Macon last Sunday evening when her selection by Eta, the honorary class society at the famous Virginia college, was made known. In case you don't know, that honor is awarded for leadership on the campus, which means that Betty stands out among members of the sophomore class by reason of her capability, her enthusiasm and class spirit, and her high standard of scholarship.

It seems that Eta, a secret organization, selects 16 members from among the sophomores each year. Beginning the middle of February, a group of four girls is "brought out" each Sunday evening for four weeks, with excitement and speculation running high among the student body as to the identity of the group each week. Among the quartet announced the preceding Sunday was Howard Perkins, of Marietta, another popular Georgian at Randolph-Macon.

Betty's selection for the honor reflects credit upon the society, for she has been an outstanding student ever since her matriculation at Randolph-Macon, following her graduation from North Avenue Presbyterian school two years ago. Among the campus organizations in which she holds membership are the Phi Mu sorority, the Sock and Buskin dramatic club, and the French Club. She is included on the staff of the "Sun Dial," the college newspaper, and during her freshman year, she was a member of the glee club. Betty's interest in dramatics is focused largely upon the stage settings, and at present she is busily engaged in creating the proper setting for "Monsieur Beaucaire," the next presentation on the schedule of the Sock and Buskin Club. Incidentally, Polly Burdette, of Atlanta, and Emma Hardman, of Commerce, are among the students who will have roles in the play.

The only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Taylor Jr., Betty is a popular and beloved member of Atlanta's college set, and her home in Druid Hills is a favorite gathering place for her host of friends when she is at home on vacation. Bob Taylor of Riverside Military Academy, is her only brother, and she is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Taylor Sr., of Macon, and of Dr. T. N. Baker and the late Mrs. Baker, prominent former residents of Macon.

THE traditional bridal custom of "wearing something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue," was followed by the former Ann Couch when she became Mrs. John Sims last evening at the East Point Presbyterian church. She carried an "old" lace handkerchief which Mrs. Walter G. Couch, mother of Mrs. Sims, carried when she was Frieda Reiss and became a bride. The "new" in the bridal ensemble was the white satin dress; the veil was the "borrowed" part of the outfit and the "blue" was featured in her garters.

There is an interesting story behind the veil the bride wore. It belonged to Mrs. R. L. Branton, a close friend of Mrs. Couch. Mrs. Branton's daughter, Mary, wore the veil when she became Mrs. William E. Thornton and in turn it was loaned to last night's bride.

MRS. GENE SMITH, the former Idabelle Roberts, has just returned from Nashville, Tenn., from where she brings a glowing account of the beautiful country estate that her hostess, Mrs. Miller Kimbrough, and her husband have just bought 14 miles out from town.

Mrs. Kimbrough, as you may remember as the former Mary Craig, was a bridesmaid in Idabelle's wedding and has frequently visited her in Atlanta since the time the two attended Sullins College together.

Idabelle brings back word that Mary will arrive on March 17 for a visit and that she will entertain in her honor at the first party to be given in her attractive new home on North Decatur road. The affair is to be a buffet

Episcopal Service Unites Miss Barr And Mr. Henley

The marriage of Miss Mabel Margaret Barr, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, to Richardson Leonard Henley, formerly of Williamsburg, Va., was solemnized yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the Cathedral of St. Philip by Dean Riamundo de Ovies.

Tom Brumby, organist, presented an appropriate program of music prior to and during the ceremony.

Palms and vases of Easter lilies interspersed with branched candelabra holding lighted white tapers decorated the altar.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. Wayne Moore Jr., of Jacksonville, and the groom was attended by his brother, Turner Henley, of Richmond, Va., as best man.

Mrs. Moore wore a spring ensemble of navy blue sheer trimmed in white and worn with a navy blue felt hat. Her bouquet was of sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

The bride wore navy blue sheer trimmed with white lingerie collar and cuffs. Her hat was of navy blue fabric trimmed with a brief veil and her three-quarter top coat was of rosewood wool. Completing her ensemble was a bouquet of gardenias.

After the ceremony Mrs. Mary C. Barr, of Columbus, Ohio, mother of the bride, entertained at a wedding breakfast at the Piedmont Driving Club for the bridal party, out-of-town wedding guests and the members of the two families.

The bride's table, overlaid with a lace cloth, was decorated with plateaus of pastel-shaded flowers and centered with a two-tiered wedding cake embossed in valley lilies and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Mr. Henley and his bride left by motor for a wedding trip to the Gulf coast and New Orleans. Upon their return they will reside at 874 Penn avenue and will be popular additions to the younger married set.

Last Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Willard See, brother and sister of the bride, entertained at a buffet supper at their home on The Prado, and earlier Monday, Walker Cowles was host at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club honoring the couple.

Among out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mrs. May C. Barr, of Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Norville L. Henley, of Williamsburg, Va.; Mrs. J. Wayne Moore Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla.; and Miss Ellen Moore, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. J. Wayne Moore Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla.; and Miss Ellen Moore, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Atlanta Music Club gives a program on the "Romance of Musical Instruments: The Symphony," Mrs. Edward Worcester Jr., and Malcolm H. Dewey as the speakers, at 10:45 o'clock in the ballroom of the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Randolph-Macon Alumnae To Meet

Randolph-Macon Alumnae meet on March 5 at the home of Mrs. D. T. Robinson, 857 Oakdale road, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. E. A. Terry and Miss Elma Harwell will be co-hostesses. The meeting takes the place of the founders' day program originally planned for March 12.

Dr. Gillie Lawer, an alumna and head of the mathematics department at Randolph-Macon, will speak. Dr. Lawer is also president of the Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia section of the Mathematical Association of America. She will present a paper on the late Dr. Nathan Allen Pattillo, her former professor and associate.

The late Dr. Pattillo was for 29 years dean of Randolph-Macon. Throughout his long career he was a leader in the field of higher education. He was also head of the mathematics department.

Miss Hill Feted

Miss Gladys Hill, bride-elect of March 5, was entertained recently at a bridal shower by Miss Margaret Pierce at her home on Robinson avenue. Miss Pierce was assisted by her mother, Mrs. H. Grady Pierce.

Present were Misses Gladys Hill, Mary Summers, Willie Ridley, Annie Ruth Boggan, Peggy Crawford, Helen Boggan, Ines Fornara, Madge Martin, Jewell Lloyd, Imogene Trent, Fannie Isenberg, Iris Kerlin, Joyce Bragg, Genie Maloof, Mary Dean Jinks, Mary Curtis, Rosa Johnson, Marian Guy, Dorothy Guy, Margaret Pierce and Mesdames Earle B. Straw Ballots Determine Choice Of Candidates for Junior League

Members of the Junior League cast straw ballots to determine the choice of candidates for president at the March meeting of the organization which was held at the Piedmont Driving Club yesterday with Mrs. Everard Richardson Jr. president, presiding.

Mrs. Green Warren, chairman of the nominating committee, announced that members not present at the meeting might cast their votes this morning at the Driving Club and that members of the nominating committee would be at the club from 10 until 12 o'clock to receive their ballots. Several changes in the procedure for election of officers for the coming year were also voted by the membership.

Mrs. Frank Boston, secretary, read the treasurer's report in the absence of Mrs. Joseph Cooper, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert Pegram IV, ways and means chairman, reported on several proposed projects.

Mrs. Claude McGinnis Jr. was appointed by the president to lead a committee to select a site for the Junior League speech clinic, a new project which the league recently voted to undertake to provide treatment and training for children handicapped by speech difficulties. Several changes in the by-laws concerning the membership committee, and dues as affecting different classifications were submitted for the approval of the membership by Mrs. Colquitt Carter, who announced that the changes would be voted upon at the April meeting.

Mrs. James Campbell read a letter from Miss Jesse Candlish, superintendent of Eggleston hospital, expressing appreciation for the increased number of members who have been added to the list of regular volunteer workers at the hospital. Miss Candlish also stated that the bandage rolling committee was keeping several months ahead in an effort to provide a sufficient supply to carry the hospital through the summer months.

Mrs. Richardson asked all former officers and committee chairmen who had any records, data or correspondence that should be a part of the permanent files of the Junior League to notify Mrs. Francis Gilbert, corresponding secretary, in order that she might collect such papers for a permanent classified file.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Monday—An interesting idea has been brought to my attention by a group of people in New York city. They suggest that manufacturers who are overstocked at the moment, should sell their surplus merchandise at cost and, in turn, the people who buy this merchandise from them should sell it to the public at a cost. In this way the purchasing power of people with small salaries would be increased, the manufacturers' shelves would be cleared and the wheels of certain industries would begin to turn again.

In looking over the studies which some economists had made, I was interested to see the regular cycles through which many industries pass. A good period, a saturation period, a bad period, and then a new start. Practically all industries apparently over-produce and then have to stop. But the industries which make things which are used up most quickly have, of course, the shortest period between the saturation point and the new starting point.

Because foodstuffs are consumed so steadily, they seem to keep farming the only large industry which does not go through some kind of a cycle like the above. However, the farmer is affected by other things.

My friends, who are suggesting this new plan, are trying to hurry the cycle in certain industries and thus get back on a production basis. To me, it seems good business as well as a help to the consumer and to the people engaged in production.

The slogan they suggest for this campaign is "People Come Before Profits." A good slogan, and a wise man knows that only when you think of people first, can you ever make profits. My congratulations and good wishes to those who are making this effort.

As long as we are thinking commercially today, another interesting point has been brought to my attention. The country as a whole, partly because of radio and partly because of WPA art projects, is becoming "art minded." The added interest in music is showing itself in dollars and cents to the manufacturers of musical instruments. In 1937 the public bought 106,000 pianos as contrasted to 27,000 in 1933. The sale of piano-accordions has gone up greatly, the guitar has come into its own, and even band instruments show an increase in sales—so education does pay commercially!

I never thought of this before. It is a good point to remember when we are trying to gain greater support for adult education and the widening of horizons for individuals, so that life may be more worth living.

I came to New York on the midnight train last night and I have taken my first lesson to improve my speaking voice. It seems stupid not to have done this before, but I am always so busy and I never realized till lately that as one grows older it is important not to strain one's voice. One must take advantage of anything which can make it easier for oneself and pleasant for other people.

'Soup's On' for Trailer-Car-Penthouse Family Here

"Come and get it!" Mrs. Roy C. Woods yells to her husband and brother-in-law, Joe Woods, as she announces lunch-time from the doorway of her trailer-penthouse on the roof of a downtown garage. Evidently the Woods brothers are ready for some "chow"—they have that hungry look. The dogs and love bird lend a "homey" atmosphere to the house on wheels, seven stories above Atlanta's busy streets.

Miss Robertson To Wed Mr. Scott.

Miss Lelah Robertson and Howard Lee Scott will be married tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock, the Rev. James L. Baggett, of College Park Baptist church, officiating.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Robertson, of College Park. The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Scott, of Atlanta.

Miss Robertson has been entertained at a series of parties given by the Auld Lang Syne Club, Misses Virginia Power, Alline and Marie Whitley, Evelyn Weaver and Mrs. L. M. Saye. Her mother entertained with a trousseau tea on Sunday afternoon at her home in College Park.

Following a wedding trip the couple will reside at 884 Oak street, S. W.

for two. Somebody has to pay and if son can't papa and mama must.

My advice to you is: Give your parents a break for the present. When you have convinced them that you cannot live without one another, but can live without their financial assistance, they will probably be reconciled to your marriage.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: A very short time ago I married a girl whom I thought was innocent. Now I have heard of at least a dozen affairs she's had with other men. When I questioned her about them she maintained she was innocent and I was afraid to press her too far for fear of losing her. What shall I do for peace of mind?
A. H.

Answer: For peace of mind, I recommend that you beg your wife's pardon, drop the subject and let the dead past be buried. You got just what you deserve for permitting anybody to discuss your wife with you. You compromised yourself and her and you shouldn't put too much confidence in the gossip. A decent man wouldn't have told you anything derogatory to your wife's character and an indecent one can't be trusted.

Disinterments and post mortems are perilous experiments for husbands and wives. What happened before they knew one another is naturally of interest but if there is anything in the past that will cause pain to either of them nothing can be done about it and the least said the better. You love your wife and she loves you—that's enough. Then go along, enjoy each other and be happy while you may.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN.

WITH A DASH.

Your butler will look down his nose—if you have a butler.

Your butler will look down his nose at the casual furniture now in fashion. If you have a butler. But informality is the order of the day, in decoration as in manners, and current exhibitions of new interiors stress this trend with a dash. Even informality has its moods, however, and the mid-winter's fashions make a paradoxical point of sophisticated provincial on one hand and provincial modern on the other.

You'll see maple, plenty of it. But it's done with a lot of contemporary style. For instance, in a little bedroom we noted the other day, the poster bed and chest were of a honey color maple and the wallpaper was a mellow little old diamond checked flower design with a good deal of rose in it, some green and an ivory ground. A white bedspread, very crisp and starched looking, white voile curtains and a quilt in white and green, all carried out the pleasant New England character of the room. But for accent there were two button back upholstered slipper chairs in chartreuse green finished with a wide cotton rope fringe. They gave the room 'its tongue-in-cheek smartness and put it right into the current decorating picture.

Swedish Type. And Aurelia Hunt, a friend of ours, has just designed some exuberant modern-provincial pieces, also for a bedroom. They're of Swedish inspiration with modern lines and painted decorations of orange and a clear sparkling blue. Another unexpected combination of peasant with modern was a bedroom with slender blond furniture complemented by a painted Swiss chest, by a painted peasant decoration on the alcove wall above the bed and by the comely patterned American hooked rug on the floor. The walls were painted in a dusty apricot color, with turquoise wood trim; the curtains were plaid with lamp shades of the same fabric.

Trailer Tourists Try New Angle; Home Is Penthouse on Garage Roof

By LUKE GREENE.

A new use has been found for the trailer-car—it can be converted into a penthouse.

Three members of America's traveling fraternity basked lazily in the sunshine on the roof of a downtown garage yesterday and gazed in admiration at their little home on wheels, seven stories above Atlanta's busy streets.

Roy C. Woods, his wife, and his brother, Joe Woods, believe they are pioneers in the field. In fact, they may be setting a precedent for good trailer-car society of the future.

Members of the Woods family don't give the slightest indication they are "snooty," but they admit they are "fed up" with trailer-car and tourist camps, and for that reason they are seeking altitude. "These camps are getting so many restrictions that I'd just rather be up to myself, and I haven't found a better place than the top of this building," Woods declared.

Then, too, there are a lot of other advantages to living the "penthouse way," they insist. "Woods, who likes things quiet and peaceful, says the traffic doesn't bother him at night and he can sleep "like a log." He added that "up here you get the full advantage of the sunshine."

Mrs. Woods, who was busily engaged in washing the dishes, put in her word.

"It isn't so hard on the housewife, either," she declared, "for at this altitude there isn't so much dust flying around and you don't have to do so much sweeping."

Woods has been traveling in trailers for the past six years. He has traveled over practically the entire United States and Canada, and during that time has had three different trailers. Mrs. Woods became his companion about two years ago. The family is always "on the go," and they have no place to call home except their trailer. They expect to stay in Atlanta about two weeks.

Mrs. Woods walked inside and turned on the radio. Swing music drifted out of the doorway. Two dogs, "Gypsie" and "Snookie," played around the feet of their masters. A love bird chirped tunelessly from its cage hanging by the door. All in all, the place presented a very home-like atmosphere.

"It's just as good as living in one of those hotel rooms," Woods said enthusiastically as he pointed to a building in the distance.

through the chest, strengthening all trunk muscles.

4. In specific exercise, the line of pull is directed to a particular group of muscles. One part of the body participates in the movement, and the other parts may be perfectly still. For example, in twisting exercises to slim the waist you do not turn the hips as you twist at the waist. Or, when the arms are propelled forward and backward from the shoulders to strengthen the pectoral muscles, and improve the bust, you do not swing the body from the waist. Otherwise, the exercise would lose its effectiveness.

5. Select your exercise program carefully to correct any posture fault. If you have a pronounced sway back, avoid all backward bending and back kicking exercises. Do those in which you bend forward, arching the back. When shoulders droop forward, arm circling should be backward.

Combine with the requisite enthusiasm and persistence, these posture rules can help you to get the most out of exercise. Only five minutes of daily exercise can make an improvement in your figure, and you will be delighted with the results of a 30-minute program. As the muscles are strengthened, bulges and posture faults vanish.

Aside from checking up on your posture during exercise, put into constant practice the rule that, whether short or tall, you will live up to every inch of your height.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

It may be intimated that the conductor of this column is a bit radical, but I'd have you know I was among the very last automobile drivers who accepted the automatic windshield wiper when that new fangled improvement was introduced.

Now I find there are a lot of conservative people who look upon the notions proposed here for Odd House from the same attitude I took toward the automatic windshield wiper. I held out a good two years. I hope Odd House will have better going. I hope, too, that we didn't frighten the staid old-timers off altogether by setting up that swing divan in the living room so mother could swing while watching the neighbors go by. And I do hope neither mother nor her scandalized daughter will concoct any more schemes for a while—not until we have the roof on, at any rate.

Oh, yes, of course, Odd House must have a roof of some sort. I may wander around like a loon without a hat, but I still like to have a roof over my head somehow, tile, thatch, slate, shingle, tar, or whatever combination various members of the household may prefer, only the less roof, consistent with protection from rain, snow or excessive sunlight the better.

"I could never see," writes one reader who will be a welcome guest at Odd House, "why hotel bedrooms, restaurant washrooms, railroad and bus station rest rooms and similar public places have plumbing installations which require contact of the hand, when faucets, buttons, etc., can as well be worked by the foot. Although such places may be kept as clean as possible in the circumstances, there is always a hazard involved in handling or touching handle, knob, button, plunger or other object that has just been handled by some one else with who knows what communicable disease."

The reason why old-time hand-manipulated equipment is still in fashion in places where the roller towel no longer flourishes is, of course, sentiment.

Only foot-pedals will be used, for water faucets, toilet flushes and the like in Odd House, not so much for the hygienic effect as for example and to familiarize outlanders with the working of modern plumbing fixtures.

From New Haven, Conn., comes a report by one of our readers that a foot-pedal plumbing installation have been in use for some time in the rest room of a large cafeteria there. This will bring a sigh to many an automobile tourist who has to patronize restaurants wherever his itinerary takes him. It is generally a problem to sit down to lunch with clean hands.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Get Your Iodin.
I have called on many of the leading druggists and none can furnish tablets containing one grain of sodium iodide. Couldn't I use one-grain tablets of potassium iodide instead? I can get that readily. (J. P. G.)

Answer—Yes. But why not use plain old iodine? Iodine is a powerful antiseptic and it will kill germs at the same time. It is simple enough to take a drop or two of ordinary iodine in a half glassful of water two or three times a week or just once a week, as a suitable ration of iodine.

Carbon Monoxide.
Your man who was overcome by auto exhaust must have inhaled carbon dioxide which caused his collapse and also carbon monoxide which poisoned him. This is a bad combination. (M. W.)

Answer—A large accumulation of carbon dioxide may cause a person to collapse—as in the case of a man going down into a silo. But no such accumulation is likely to occur in a closed garage. A very small amount of carbon monoxide in the air a man breathes is sufficient to cause collapse. This subject is dealt with in the booklet "How to Breathe," which also gives instructions for resuscitating victims of monoxide, electric shock, asphyxia or drowning. For copy send 10 cents coin and a stamped envelope bearing your address. Not clipping of this item, please. Clippings are likely to be lost and cause delay. If you can't write the name of the booklet or monograph you want, some kind person will write it for you. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

A GADABOUT'S NOTEBOOK.

HOLLYWOOD, March 1.—"Gone With the Wind" will cost David Selznick $300,000 more for the privilege of filming it in Technicolor. I understand he would prefer to make the picture in black and white, but Boss Whitney, of Technicolor, holds the purse-strings. . . . Olivia De Havilland, who has made seven pictures in a row, is so exhausted that she goes to bed every lunch period and lies down between all takes. . . . Errol Flynn says he likes Hollywood—because "the natives meet you halfway"—but still grumbles about excessive income tax. "Uncle Sam wins every time" is the theme song of his complaint.

Kay Francis headed the list of Warner star salaries in 1937—but will do better yet in 1938, because her salary has jumped from $5,200 to $6,000 a week. Kay makes four pictures a year, but her average success has been so good lately. . . . Gale Sondergaard—remember her as Faith in "Anthony Adverse" and as Mrs. Dreyfus with Paul Muni in "The Life of Emile Zola"—says she is having a good time at MGM—making tests for this and that—

Beauty According To You

(Posed by Claire Dodd.)

You Must Use a Foundation If You Would Have and Retain a Perfect Make-Up

By LILLIAN MAE.

It has been a long time since I've reminded you of a foundation cream, but I'm just as insistent as ever on its use, following your thorough facial cleansing and toning, and preceding the application of rouge and powder.

There are worlds of foundation and vanishing creams, but it is best to be sure that the one you choose will not clog your pores and give you a clownish, pasty appearance.

I have been using recently a new foundation, of a lovely velvety, creamy consistency. Upon your immaculately clean skin, still fresh from use of tonic or freshener, you should place a dot on your forehead, nose, cheeks and chin, then blend the cream quickly over face and throat. Thus used, it will protect your skin and keep it looking fresh for hours.

What a relief not to have to be constantly using a powder puff! This foundation comes in shades to blend with your powder—and incidentally the same shade names as a lovely-to-use powder made by the same firm which manufactures the foundation. Used together, they produce a really velvety and hard-to-beat effect. The fragrance is same in both items, and though the powder is a tiny bit darker than the foundation by the same tint name, they harmonize perfectly so as to carry out the duo make-up idea of dark over light—one of the most flattering discoveries ever made in make-up.

Phone me for the names of these items and the Atlanta stores at which they may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write, accompanying your request with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Youthful Movie Stars Will Be Honored.

Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis, youthful stars of the motion picture entitled "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," will be honor guests at the luncheon to be given at the Atlanta Woman's Club on Thursday at 12:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Alva G. Maxwell is president of the club and requests that members and friends make reservations not later than at noon today, by telephoning Lemoick 4638. Tommy Kelly plays the role of Tom Sawyer and Ann Gillis, takes the part of Becky Thatcher, in Mark Twain's famous book, which has been adapted for the silver screen.

but no job. . . . The same studio is hoping William Powell will take the title "Unofficial Ambassador of Hollywood" on his South American trip. But Bill says "no." All that publicity hokey about Katharine Hepburn insisting on Ginger Rogers appearing in her current film, "Holiday"—was just that. The two girls are not what you would call friendly.

Patsy Kelly has brought down her weight from 175 pounds to 155—but vows she will do better. Take it easy, Patsy. . . . MGM will make a picture out of Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People," offering the lead to the author. . . . Charles Chaslin back in town and assuring intimates that this time he has a script ready for Paulette Goddard. But the latter tells intimates she couldn't wait. She goes to New Orleans to get herself some of that southern accent necessary for the role of Scarlett. . . . A certain writer has been working on a story for Joan Crawford for two years. Every script he has produced has been turned down, with orders to write a new one. And now he's afraid that his last epic is so good, it will be accepted—and my lovely pension will cease.

When, if ever, Mireille Balin returns to Hollywood, her salary will be upped to $2,000 a week. This doesn't make sense in any language, because she received $1,500 a week during her stay here without making a single picture. . . . Which reminds me of the game now being played between Danielle Darrieux and Universal. When the French girl signed her $5,000 weekly contract, she stipulated that her leading man must be a first ranking star—like Fredric March or Ronald Colman. Also that she must okay her script. She vetoed the first, passed the second. But the studio could not hire a prominent actor because the male role was too small. By the time this matter has been adjusted, Mlle. Darrieux, by studio reckoning, will have $150,000 in the bank. Not bad pay—for a vacation. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

GRACEFUL PRINCESS FROCK WITH LIFTED WAISTLINE.

Isn't this a charming afternoon frock? And it's so flattering! That lifted waistline in the front gives you a beautifully slim, straight line, and gathers just above the desired bust fullness. Short sleeves, full at the shoulders, add to the charming effect. It's the kind of dress you can wear time after time and on all occasions, with the assurance that you look your trimmest and best. Make it of silk crepe or one of the lovely new spring prints, and be sure that the cluster of flowers at the V-neck is in one of your most becoming shades. You will have no trouble making this pretty afternoon dress, for the pattern is accompanied by a sew chart that carefully directs you every step of the way.

Spanish War Veterans' Auxiliary President Arrives Here March 6

Mrs. Mary A. McGauley, of New York, national president of the United Spanish War Veterans, will arrive here on March 6 to spend several days. Chief Alfred J. Kennedy, of New York, will arrive at the same time, to be guest of the Department of Georgia, United Spanish War Veterans, of which Captain Henry J. Stewart, of Rome, is commander.

The Department of Georgia, Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans, of which Mrs. Willie Stewart, of Rome, Ga., is president, will entertain for Mrs. McGauley during her visit to Atlanta. On March 6 at 3 o'clock there will be a meeting at the Georgian Terrace hotel, where veterans and members of auxiliaries will hear Mr. Kennedy and Mrs. McGauley.

On Sunday evening at 7 o'clock a dinner will be given at the Georgian Terrace by departments, honoring the visitors. Reservations for dinner can be made with past department commander, Halph Steckel, 1171 Campbellton road, S. W.

On March 7 Mrs. McGauley will be given a drive to points of interest around Atlanta. The drive will be followed by luncheon at 1 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace hotel. Reservations for the luncheon can be made with Mrs. Theresa Evans, 779 Hill street, S. E. A visit to Hospital No. 48 will be made in the afternoon.

In the evening of March 7 the commander-in-chief and national president will be entertained at dinner by Captain Stewart, department commander, and Mrs. Stewart, department president.

Mrs. McGauley has been a member of the National Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans, for 22 years. She has resided in New

MRS. MARY A. M'GAULEY.

York city since birth and despite the many years of service given to the National Auxiliary, has found time to affiliate herself with civic affairs.

Mrs. McGauley immediately became active upon receiving membership in the organization in 1916. A few years afterward she was elected president of Marine Auxiliary No. 28, of the Department of New York, and served her state as department president in 1932.

She became active in the national organization, serving on various national committees and taking an active part in national conventions. In 1934, Mrs. McGauley was elected national chaplain, and continued to succeed herself in office until her election as national president in Columbus, Ohio, in 1937.

One of Mrs. McGauley's prime interests in the organization has been her work in the veterans' hospitals.

Mother, Mix Your Own
Cough Remedy. It's Better

Double-quick Relief.
Saves Money. Easily Mixed.
No matter what you might spend for medicine, you couldn't get quicker, better relief from coughs that start from colds than this simple home mixture gives. It takes but a moment to prepare—it's so easy a child could do it. And it saves real money.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugstore. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time and children love its taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, you'll find it beats anything you ever tried. It has a remarkable three-fold action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Miss Ann Couch Weds Dr. Sims At Church Ceremony in East Point

Miss Ann Couch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Couch, of East Point, became the bride of Dr. John Sims, of Birmingham, Ala., at an impressive ceremony taking place last evening at 8 o'clock, at the Presbyterian church in East Point. Rev. Hal B. Boswell, the pastor, read the marriage service in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the popular young couple.

Prior to and during the ceremony a musical program was rendered by Miss Grace Cooper, pianist, and Mrs. J. P. Alexander and Miss Elizabeth Trimble, soloists.

The interior of the church was artistically decorated with quantities of palms, ferns and other rich greenery. The altar was banked with the greenery which served as an effective background for the tall pedestal baskets filled with calla lilies. Seven-branched candles in candelabra held white burning tapers.

Ushers were Wright Campbell, Gerald Stahlkuppe and George and Douglas Couch, cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Walter Couch Jr. was matron of honor and Mrs. Paul Hedrick, of Lenox, N. C., was bridesmaid. The former was in yellow and the latter was in aqua and their gowns were fashioned alike in taffeta models made with basque waists and short puffed sleeves. They wore brief tulle veils caught to their hair with a cluster of pastel-shaded flowers in miniature bouquet effect. They carried shoulder bouquets of pastel-shaded summer garden flowers.

Entering with her father, Walter G. Couch, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the groom and Walter G. Couch Jr., who was best man. The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of soft white satin, fashioned along princess lines. The neckline was featured by a row of ruching, which was a becoming feature, and the long skirt widened to form a train. The white tulle veil fell in graceful folds over the train and was caught to her hair by clusters of orange blossoms. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Walter G. Couch, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in a lace gown of dusty pink. Her flowers were roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Couch entertained at a reception at their home in East Point for the bride and groom. The home was decorated with quantities of pastel-shaded spring garden flowers. The bride's table was covered with a real lace cloth and was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. At either end of the table were large plateaux of spring garden flowers.

Mrs. J. P. Flynn kept the bride's book, and assisting the hosts in entertaining were Misses Mary Virginia Couch, Louise Howard, Constance Livsey, Mary Koon, Elise Aiken and Mesdames Dan Boone and Gerald Stahlkuppe.

Dr. Sims and his bride departed for Birmingham, where they will reside. The bride traveled in a gold wool suit, trimmed in fox, and worn with a beige blouse and hat. Her shoes and bag were copper color.

Floding-Brooks Rites Will Be Attended By Many Visitors

Guests from a distance are arriving here for the marriage of Miss Mary Floding and Frederick O. Brooks, which takes place on Saturday. Mrs. William Winchell arrived yesterday from her home in Kansas City, Mo., and is visiting the bride-elect at her home on Myrtle street.

Mr. and Mrs. David Cocks, of Louisville, Ky., will arrive tomorrow and will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bond Almond until after the Floding-Brooks nuptials.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Meredith, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brooks, of Akron, Ohio, are other visitors coming for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Fay Pearce were hosts last evening at a bridge party at their home on Beverly road in honor of Miss Floding and Mr. Brooks.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bond Almond, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. Chason, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Perry, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dennis, Miss Ethel Smith, Miss Catherine Gilbert, Mr. William Winchell, of Kansas City, Mo., Gene Butler, Hal Milner, Miss Floding and Mr. Brooks.

Movies To Be Made Of Skating Carnival

The Atlanta Women's Club announces today that such wide interest has been shown in the skating carnival to be held at Lakewood tomorrow evening, arrangements have been made to have the event made into a motion picture which will later be shown on the screen of the Loew's Grand theater. The film will be produced by a local company under the direction of a Hollywood motion picture expert who is now in Atlanta.

Invitations to the skating carnival have been accepted by Governor and Mrs. Rivers, Mayor Hartfield and many other notables who will view the event from a special box being built for honor guests.

An elaborate program of entertainment has been planned which will include a skating act by the whirlwind trio, Dot and John Carlson, and Jack Sams. A clever comedy skating act will be presented by Chester Mills. A special feature will be a number by 10 girl members of the Best Skating Club, among whom will be Miss Jennie Rivers, daughter of Governor Rivers. In the balloon number thousands of various colored balloons will be released from the ceiling with special lighting effects.

Skates will be supplied for those who wish to skate. Mrs. William G. McRae and Mrs. William T. Banning are in charge of arrangements.

Garden Club Meets.
Lullwater Garden Club meets at 2:30 o'clock on Friday at the home of Mrs. H. W. Stephenson, 2121 Ponce de Leon avenue. Mesdames J. M. Rooker, W. R. Bean, Tom Connor, T. H. Jordan will be hostesses.

POOR RELATION

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Katha Lodge leaves her New Hampshire hamlet for a New York visit at the invitation of her wealthy uncle, Richard Carruth, and his foster-daughter Lois. Lois meets her train and on the way to the Carruths Park Avenue penthouse warns Katha to call her aunt Evelyn, not Aunt Evelyn.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT II.

"I don't care about parties and clothes. Mother thinks I'm hopeless. When I go down to the farm Dad has in Maryland, I never want to leave. I love the life down there, living in riding clothes, fooling with the horses and dogs." She wrinkled her little nose and grinned. "Gosh, I'm talking a lot. But I just can't be a social butterfly like Millicent. But Katha, I didn't insist on meeting you to talk about myself. I wanted to warn you not even to look at Kemp Loring. Millicent's in love with him and if you look at him twice, she'll have her claws on you."

Katha thought, "What am I going into?" she said. "But I'm just a poor relation, Lois."

"Yes, but you're too lovely looking," And Lois was thinking how Evelyn had received the news of Katha's visit, how she had cried, "But, Richards, what will I do with the child? Oh, I'm sure she's a darling and I know she's your sister's child, but what will I do with her? She's been nowhere and she'll probably look frightful and Millicent will be embarrassed before her friends. Why did you have to invite her here? You could have sent her a check for a trip or..." But Richard had said quietly but firmly, "I invited her and she's coming. She's lovely. If anything, Millicent's friends will probably be embarrassed by her. Millicent's flippant remarks to her friends had drifted to Lois. "I don't know if I can make it, darling. I've a country cousin coming and I don't know how she'll turn out. Of course Father insists on my being sweet here."

The car stopped before a tall white building. Katha followed Lois' trim little figure inside, and to the elevator. Up... Up... She held her breath until the elevator stopped. Then a door swung open and she found herself standing at the entrance of the largest, loveliest room she had ever seen, a room alive with people talking between sips of cocktails. Jewels sparkled on wrists and fingers. The smoke was thick.

Then she saw Aunt Evelyn. No, just Evelyn, she thought quickly. And she tried to hide a smile because Evelyn's hair was pale yellow now. She was very thin in the clinging blue velvet gown.

The slender blond girl dressed in black with pearls at her throat was unmistakably Millicent because she was Evelyn 20 years younger. And Millicent was talking to a tall, handsome, dark-haired man, Kemp Loring. Katha wondered. Don't even look at him, she thought.

Then Evelyn saw her. Bill McMillan looked at the entrance just then, too, seeing Lois with a strange, black-haired girl. Was she the country cousin Millicent had been laughing about? She couldn't be! And yet she must be... And Bill McMillan thought, "Katha Lodge doesn't know it yet, but she has the last laugh. She's beautiful. Look at Evelyn putting on the grand act of welcoming her..."

Evelyn was saying to Katha, "Dardling, I'm delighted! How are dear Grace and John? And the twins? I've never seen them, you know. You were very tiny when I saw you last. Do come and meet everybody. Richard isn't here but I expect him any moment."

She took Katha from one group to another. Finally they came to the end of the room where Millicent stood with Kemp Loring and Bill McMillan.

Coolly Millicent said, "Hello, Katha. How nice to see you." Katha looked at the two young men. Both were tall, both were handsome. "Kemp Loring's hair was as black as his eyes. Bill McMillan's hair was not blond, not brown but bronzed, she decided. He had a swift charming smile."

When Evelyn had led her to another group, Bill said, "So she's from a hamlet in New Hampshire." His blue eyes mocked Millicent. "You'll have to eat all the cracks you've made about her. I think she's swell."

Millicent shrugged. "She doesn't know anything, how could she? She's never been anywhere."

"She doesn't have to know much," Bill said. "You can just look at her."

"You'll probably get enough of looking at her. She'll be here a month. And any time you want to take her off my hands..."

He grinned. "You've got something there."

She looked up at Kemp, who had not said anything, and saw that he was looking at Katha across the room. "Kemp, let's go. I couldn't possibly stay home for dinner. Father will want to know all about his New England relatives. Poor mother. Of course Lois eats it up, too. You'd think they were her own relatives."

Bill's mouth tightened. He was fond of Lois. "You can never forget that Lois isn't your own sister, can you? But she's a credit to you, a swell kid."

Richard Carruth, gray-haired, brown-eyed, distinguished, came in, went directly to Katha with his hands outstretched, embraced her, and kissed her. And Katha thought, "I believe I'm going to cry," because his arms were so loving, because she knew now that Evelyn and Millicent had not wanted her and resented her, that Evelyn was being the actress she could be, and that Millicent would not even pretend to be friendly.

Richard smiled down at her. "You look great. You're the only girl here except Lois who looks as if she gets enough sleep. Evelyn and Millicent go on nervous energy. When this mob clears out, Katha, we'll have a quiet family dinner, and you can tell me about the folks at home. I'm delighted you're here."

But when the guests left, Millicent, it appeared, had left with them. Though nothing was said at dinner, Katha recognized the snub. During dinner, Evelyn frequently consulted her watch. Richard, though he looked tired, talked animatedly. Lois smiled across the table at Katha and talked. Katha felt the tightness in her ease a little. At least she had Uncle Richard and Lois...

After dinner Evelyn disappeared and appeared again in Richard's study. She had changed from the blue velvet to gold lace. "Katha dear, I'm so sorry to be leaving but I've had this theater engagement for weeks."

Katha promptly forgot her. Richard filled his pipe. Lois sat on a low stool before the fireplace. The hours passed in talk. And often Katha thought, "Mother was right. Uncle Richard and Lois are very close."

They said good night before Millicent or Evelyn came in and Lois went to Katha's room with her. Her room... It was too fragile, too beautiful to be lived in. There were deft touches of blue to relieve the dead white of the modern furniture, and tonight the long-stemmed red roses in a tall white vase on the table beside the low broad white bed added an electric touch of brightness.

Lois said, "Just phone when you want breakfast in the morning. You'll like Harriet. She's our best maid."

Katha nodded. A maid, breakfast in bed... It was unreal. But she welcomed the softness and warmth of the bed and the quiet and darkness. "Of all the people I met today I can remember only Bill McMillan and Kemp Loring. And Bill McMillan is the kind of man Mother warned me about, a playboy, and Kemp Loring is the man Millicent's in love with." She yawned, closed her eyes, and wondered what tomorrow and the days after tomorrow would bring...

The ringing of the telephone awakened Katha. She sat up quickly, startled, forgetting for an instant where she was. Who in New York was calling her?

Reaching over, she took the white telephone and said a very sleepy, "Hello."

"Good morning," a very wide-awake, cheerful, masculine voice said. "This is Bill McMillan. I thought you'd be up hours ago riding in the park with Lois. I didn't realize you'd turn into a city sleeper..."

She lay back and smiled. He was kidding her, of course. But now gay and friendly his voice was—as if they had known each other forever! Her eyes, clear and amused a moment ago, were puzzled. Had Millicent told him to call her? She remembered him—tall, bronze-haired, with a charming smile. McMillan didn't look as if he'd do anything he didn't want to do...

Before she could say anything he said, "I had to get my call in early before the rush starts. I've just appointed myself a committee of one to show you the town."

"But you're a little late, I'm afraid. You'll have to be a sub-committee. Lois..."

"Oh, Lois. I see. The early bird." She liked his deep, gay chuckle. "Well, we'll split honors. Lois may show you the museums and Grant's tomb and places like that and I'll take you where the lights are still bright at dawn. Shall we begin tonight? Credentials needed? Ask Richard and Lois. They're my pals."

"Well..." Would Uncle Richard mind? She was certain that Millicent and Evelyn cared little what she did or where she went or with whom. They'd probably be glad to have her out of their way. Bill said, "It's settled then. At 7:30."

After breakfast in bed, Katha put on a blue wool dress and went into the drawing room. Lois was curled up on the divan with a magazine. Millicent, wearing a mink coat and a small black hat, was smoking. Evelyn sat at the desk writing a check—for Millicent, Katha guessed.

"Good morning, darling," Evelyn said in her high, nervous voice. "Did you sleep well? I'll be through in just a moment and we'll try to plan something for today."

"It's already planned," Lois said. "Katha and I are having lunch with Dad."

Evelyn looked relieved. Millicent said impatiently, "Please hurry, Mother. Kemp is waiting."

Katha sat beside Lois and said, "Tonight has been planned, too. I've just been talking to Bill McMillan."

SHADOW PLAYS OF JAVA.

If you were a boy or girl in Java one thing which would amuse you would be the "shadow play." For nearly a thousand years, plays of this kind have been given on the Dutch-owned island just south of the equator.

Holland owns Java, but only a small portion of the people are Dutch. The rest are mostly brown-skinned folk, with some Chinese settlers among them.

The native name for the shadow play is "wayang," which means "shadow." Puppets are placed behind a cloth screen, and their shadows are seen by the audience. Men and women, as well as children, are fond of watching the puppets move.

In early days, it is believed the puppets were supposed to be ing face and a body of strange shape.

Today there is little, if any, belief that the puppets are "ghosts." The shows are given to entertain those who watch, not to show their ancestors.

The puppets are cut from leather, usually from the hide of the water buffalo. Among them are wicked "monsters," as well as dolls of more or less human shape.

Old legends are acted out at the shows. Many children in Java do not go to school, but few, if any, miss the shadow plays. By watching them, the boys and girls obtain at least a little "education." They learn something of the old myths of their country.

A hero named Raden Panji is perhaps the best-loved puppet. He is a prince with great powers of fighting. In combats with other princes he always wins, and he also knocks down demons.

In recent times, some plays have been given without screens. Wood, instead of leather, is used in making puppets which perform in full light of those who watch.

Still another kind of play is known as the "wayang wong." Living people take the parts of the dolls, and travel from place to place to give shows.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.
Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling f. o. b. 9.75.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Cotton was heavy today under the liquidation, hedging and some Bombay selling. May reacted from a reopening high of 9.22 to a close at 9.10. Final prices were 10 to 11 points net lower.

The market opened with near positions heavy in trade buying and later deliveries lower under moderate liquidations. A decline in the discount of that market under New York attracted considerable attention. Bombay offered contracts here. There were partial afternoon recoveries, but when renewed southern selling appeared early buyers resold.

Total southern offerings were otton and textile was reported low. Exports today 924, making total of 4,463,825 for the season thus far. Port receipts 15,349. United States port stocks 3,157,399.

Easiness at Bombay which caused the Bombay broach decline under May-New York to rebound to about 65 points, or the parity since last August, attracted considerable attention. In after trading, observers saw no signs of Bombay selling here, but offered prices estimated at 10,000 sales of May and July were attributed to this source.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

No. 33

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The cunning Balzo weighed carefully his chances for success. Now his prospective captives were relaxed and incautious; tonight they would be ringed around with alert sentries. Besides, he believed the darkness would confer special powers on Tarzan, the demon.

So, Balzo dispatched a messenger to bring his horde of warriors down into the valley. Warily they came, without a sound, for the children of the Tree-God were well trained in the art of surprising their victims. At last they deployed and encircled the camp.

Ordinarily Tarzan would have picked up the scent of the foe for his nostrils were as keen as any beast's. But now, by a strange caprice of fate he was near the campsite, and his nostrils were filled with the spicy aroma of a civilized luncheon in preparation.

Balzo grinned. For every member of the safari, he had five powerful warriors, and he would be a simple matter to capture Tarzan and his friends. Suddenly Balzo's voice rang out, "Attack!" And with blood-curdling yells, the savage horde charged into the clearing!

JAPANESE TO STRIKE AT SHENSI PROVINCE

Chinese Army of 100,000 Fleeing Before Nipponese Soldiers.

SHANGHAI, March 2.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Japanese driving forward almost without opposition at the western end of the Lunghai battle front indicated today they would strike next at Shensi province, Communist stronghold.

With a Chinese army of 100,000 fleeing before them in southern Shensi province, leaving them in control of virtually all of the vast area to the north and east of the Yellow river, the Japanese turned their attention to the province to the westward. Japanese planes were reported reconnoitering over Tungkuwan, gateway to Shensi, and other cities near the border. One column was said to have crossed the Yellow river and occupied Wupao, first town to be taken by the Japanese in Shensi province.

The main force continued to pursue the retreating Chinese through southern Shensi toward the bend in the Yellow river where it turns north to form the boundary between Shensi and Shansi.

A Japanese army spokesman said Japanese planes had bombed the headquarters of General Chu Teh, commander-in-chief of the Communist eighth army, who had directed the most effective opposition in Shensi. The bombing was part of the severe airplane and artillery pounding the Japanese administered to the fleeing Chinese.

Boy Fools Robber; To Use Stick Next Time

Charlie Little, Felled by Youth, Feigns Being 'Out,' Saves 35 Cents.

Charles Little Jr., 9, decided yesterday to carry a stick, but not for swagger or "Little Lord Fauntleroy" purposes. No, sir—for defense.

Charles, who lives at 786 Virginia circle, N. E., was beaten and robbed early Monday night while selling magazines on Adair avenue, near his home.

"Hereafter, I'm going to walk along with a stick in my hand. If any big boy jumps on me, like the one Monday night, he'll get plenty from me," he said, gritting his teeth in determination.

Red-haired, freckle-faced Charles, whose father is Atlanta manager for a pen company, told about the attack.

"It was a boy about 16 years old," he said. "He kept walking in front of me, while I was on my rounds selling magazines. I guess he thought I was collecting. But it wasn't my day for collecting."

"He put a rock in his cap and hit me on the head—" At this point Charles pointed to a little square of bandage over the laceration—"It knocked me down, but I wasn't out. I made believe I was, though, and he went through my pockets."

"He got two cents in one pocket and a pencil worth a quarter. But he didn't look in the pocket where I had 35 cents."

After the "frisking," the young bandit fled. Charles screamed. Residents came to his rescue and took him home. A doctor treated his wound.

Bandits, watch out for Charles Little Jr. The nine-year-old Atlanta boy was beaten and robbed early Monday night while selling magazines. Charles, pointing to the bandage on his head, grabs a stick to illustrate how he'll defend himself in future from bandit attacks.
